While police continue their search of a Dade County, Fla., house for other grisly finds, the body of Mark B. Matson, 16, of Washington C. H. is en route home.

The boy's dismembered body was found by police Saturday in a block of concrete in a Miami residence.

Plane crash at St. Louis fatal to 36

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The pilot of an Ozark Air Lines plane that crashed in a St. Louis suburb thinks he flew through a tornado and is sure the plane was hit by lightning. Authorities say at least 36 persons died.

Ozark Flight 825, which originated in Nashville, Tenn., and was carrying 41 passengers and a crew of three, crashed into a wooded ravine Monday night during a violent thunderstorm.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Arvid Linke, pilot of the turboprop Fairchild 227, radioed shortly before the crash that he believed he was in a tornado and that he had been hit by lightning. Authorities recovered tapes of conversations between Linke and the control tower at Lambert Airport and began today to attempt to determine the cause of the crash that "lit up the sky."

A brief fire followed the impact at 6:45 p.m. EDT as the plane disintegrated, knocking down trees and strewn power lines in its path.

An FAA spokesman said the control tower at the airport lost sight of the aircraft on radar about a mile from the airport at an altitude of about 600 feet.

Authorities said today they had reports of eight survivors in several area hospitals.

Among the injured was Linke, who authorities said was carried from the plane's wreckage. The extent of his injuries was not immediately known. The Red Cross said Beth Williams, the plane's stewardess, was among the victims.

The plane left Nashville at 3:35 p.m. Monday en route to St. Louis. It had made intermediate stops at Clarksville, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; and Marion, Ill.

Winds peaking at 37 miles per hour accompanied a downpour of nearly two inches of rain during the brief storm that came at the time of the crash.

Two giant oak trees stopped the plane's descent just short of an unoccupied gymnasium on the campus of the University of Missouri-St. Louis in suburban Normandy.

Conditions at the airport, although bad, were described by an FAA official as "not bad enough to close down operations."

The crash was the first involving a casualty for Ozark, which resumed flights July 5 after a 71-day strike by mechanics. The airline serves 62 cities in 15 states, mostly in the Midwest.

An Ozark spokesman in Nashville said the aircraft, built by the Fairchild Hiller Corp., was of the type that has been in service for commercial airlines since the mid-1950s.

Assembly action set on lottery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Action was expected in the General Assembly today to move proposals for a state lottery, an Ohio Vietnam veterans bonus, and repeal of Sunday closing laws nearer reality.

The Senate Ways & Means Committee had the Housepassed lottery bill under consideration as leaders of the two chambers pressed for final action on major issues prior to 1973 adjournment.

After winning 29-1 approval in the Senate, the Senate-House conference committee report on the veterans bonus was before the House for a favorable vote which would send it to the November ballot.

A bill to repeal Ohio's ancient Sunday "blue laws," totally unenforced in recent years, was before a Senate floor session. It already has passed the House, and should go on to Gov. John J. Gilligan without significant opposition.

Committee action was being awaited on other major bills such as state

Skyjackers free 137 hostages, blow up jet

BENGHAZI, Libya (AP) — The hijackers of a Japanese jumbo jetliner blew up the Boeing 747 today at the Benghazi airport a few minutes after they and their 137 hostages slid down an emergency chute. The hijackers were arrested.

Passengers and crew members who had been held hostage since Friday had run about a quarter of a mile from the plane when explosive charges set by the four hijackers went off in the cockpit.

Libyan troops armed with sub-machine guns arrested the four hijackers.

The hijackers who seized the plane shortly after it took off from Amsterdam last Friday kept it on the ground with 139 other persons aboard will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Church of Christ in Christian Union, with the Rev. Robert Kline officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home from 4 until 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, and until noon on Friday at the church.

Miami police say they will begin tearing down a fake wall behind a homemade torture chamber to see if the house is hiding other bodies.

Detectives were also expected to dig up the yard around the home of the dead suspect in the murder to see if any bodies are buried there.

The man, Albert Brust, 44, is also suspected by police in the rape-torture of the youth's 15-year-old female companion.

Brust was found dead Saturday after committing suicide by drinking cyanide mixed with chocolate milk, police said.

Inside Brust's house, police said, they found a torture chamber and a bathroom where Brust had sealed the body of Matson.

After killing Matson, Brust allegedly chained, whipped and raped the youth's 15-year-old companion, a runaway from Frankfort, Ky., in a padded torture chamber.

Police say the torture chamber is six feet short on one end where a false wall was erected to which Brust attached chains and other torture paraphernalia.

Police said they wanted to tear the wall down to see if anything was sealed behind it.

Matson's companion told police in nearby Fort Lauderdale last week that the two of them were picked up while hitchhiking and taken to Brust's home, where he ordered them to perform sex acts while he took pictures.

The girl said that when the boy resisted, Brust shot him, hacked his body up and cemented it into a shower stall.

After a preliminary investigation, Fort Lauderdale authorities decided the girl was lying. But when Brust was discovered dead sitting in his back yard, police began checking the story again.

Brust had a criminal record dating back to 1945, police said, but it showed no evidence of deviant sexual behavior.

He had been arrested and convicted of assault in Queens, New York, in connection with a robbery in 1951. He served seven years in prison and was released in 1958.

Divers open Andrea Doria salvage bid

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Two scuba divers plan to dive 245 feet to the ocean floor today for a 10-day salvage assault on the Andrea Doria, a sunken ocean liner that has eluded treasure hunters for 17 years.

In 1956, when the Italian luxury liner and a Swedish ship collided in heavy fog 45 miles off Nantucket Island, the Doria was considered a virtual floating art gallery. Cash, negotiable bonds, art treasures and jewelry worth an estimated $4 million reportedly are on the sunken liner.

The divers say the art, money and jewelry are still there.

employe pay raises, unemployment compensation, and revisions in workmen's compensation laws, among others.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, cast the only dissenting vote as the Senate gave its approval to the constitutional resolution to pay bonuses of up to $500 to Vietnam and other veterans dating back to February 1961. From 450,000 to 500,000 would be eligible, under varying estimates.

The freshman senator noted that only about 150,000 of those eligible "actually went to Vietnam," and said he could have supported a resolution limited to them. The others, he said, had pay and fringe benefits "comparable to persons in private industry and had 'nothing like the hardships the Vietnam veterans had.'"

If approved by voters in November, the state would begin to receive applications for the bonus after Jan. 1, 1974. Veterans, who could receive double their cash bonuses in education

Members of the crew said no one was hurt during the evacuation, but blood was spurting from a cut above the eye of one old Japanese woman and her glasses were smashed.

All the hostages looked worn out by their 3½-day ordeal, and some appeared on the verge of collapse.

Constitutional confrontation at hand

Probers, Cox subpoena tape

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon battled today in a legal no-man's-land to withhold Watergate evidence he frankly admits can't prove his innocence.

He refused Monday to produce the sought-after Watergate-related tape recordings and documents voluntarily, and promptly was served with subpoenas from the Senate Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The next step in the unfolding constitutional confrontation was scheduled for today, when Cox has promised to make public the wording of his subpoena by filing it in court.

Nixon has until Thursday to respond to the subpoenas, which he appeared determined not to honor. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the President has taken "a very firm position" against release of the material, either publicly or to a grand jury.

Nixon might ignore the subpoenas, risking moves that could find him in contempt of Congress or the courts. Or he might fight them directly with legal motions asking a judge to quash them. Either way, the fight appears destined for ultimate resolution in the Supreme Court, which has never ruled clearly on whether a President may withhold evidence in a criminal case.

Asked what legal course Nixon might take, Warren responded, "The White House counsel will examine the subpoenas. Whatever is done will be in the context of the letters issued today."

In the letters the White House refused to give the material either to the committee or to Cox, who are seeking it for different purposes.

Nixon wrote a personal letter to committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. Consulting White House lawyer Charles Alan Wright wrote Cox.

Both letters said the constitutional separation of powers would be violated unless the tapes and documents were kept secret.

Nixon said he has listened to some of the tapes, and stated that they would not settle whether ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III was telling the truth when he accused Nixon of participating in the Watergate cover-up plot. Dean said Nixon discussed hush money and clemency offers in the Oval Office.

"The tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth," Nixon said. "However, as in any verbatim recording of informal conversations, they contain comments that persons with different perspectives would inevitably interpret in different ways."

Ervin, in announcing that the committee would subpoena the tapes, said he found Nixon's letter "rather remarkable."

"If you'll notice, he said he's heard the tapes, and they sustain his position. But he says he's not going to let anyone have them for fear they might draw a different conclusion," Ervin said.

"In other words, the President says they are susceptible of two different interpretations."

Ervin scoffed at Nixon's claim that the separation of powers doctrine gives him power to withhold the material. "I am certain that the doctrine of separation of powers does not impose upon any president either the duty or the power to undertake to separate a congressional committee from access to the truth," he said.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the vice chairman of the committee, said he would withhold any personal criticism or judgments until the

Fair attendance spurts

By KIRK ARNOTT

Lured by an eight-dash harness horse racing card, the activity-crowded midway and hot, clear weather, 2,800 paying customers attended the Fayette County Fair Monday, nearly double the figure for Monday a year ago.

There was some livestock judging, and all animals were in their barns by Monday evening. A garden tractor pull and the first of three 4-H fashion reviews also helped to swell the crowd.

Monday's paid gate was by far the best Monday in recent years. A hard rain last year limited the Monday crowd to 1,406 as the harness races were cancelled.

There was no rain Monday, however, and the racetrack was in good shape

Three bills dealing with public employees' rights and benefits cleared the House Monday without significant opposition. The House passed and sent to the Senate a measure assuring state employees working more than 40 hours in one week of the right to choose between cash or compensating time, both on time-and-a-half basis.

Representatives added their approval to Senate bills extending permanent civil service status to employees in their jobs two years or longer without a competitive examination, and allowing public employees such as firemen to accumulate more than the present maximum of 120 days in sick leave.

for the first of four nights of racing. Dr. Frank Todd drove the winners of all four heats of the Ohio Colt Racing Association's 3-year-old trotting stakes.

Right Turn won the first and sixth races with Todd driving, and May won the second and seventh dashes. There were 560 racing fans in the grandstand and on the rail for the races.

ONE OF THE BIGGER garden tractor pulls in this area was held starting at noon Monday in front of the grandstand, with 70 entries. Mark Wheeler, Martin Quigley, John Mahan and Danny Hardyman won in the four classes.

Animals entered in the beef, lamb and hog carcass contests were evaluated live Monday, then shipped to several slaughter houses to be processed. Placings of the cut-out carcasses will be announced prior to the three market livestock auctions Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights.

Rabbits and breeding sheep were judged in Junior Fair livestock activity, and about 300 market pigs were weighed Monday morning and afternoon.

The market pigs were judged Tuesday, starting at 8 a.m. The judging was expected to stretch well into the afternoon. The grand champion single and the top pair of barrows will be the first lots sold at Wednesday night's Junior Fair hog sale in the sales arena.

WITH A HOT summer sun bathing the Fairground, a large pre - 4 p.m. crowd jammed the midway and the various exhibits. Most of the mud had dried up, although the main parking area behind the Fairground was still rather mucky. Most Fairgoers parked in the field behind the horse barns where the ground was a lot dryer.

The Fair's tempo continued to increase Tuesday, with the first of the open class livestock shows on schedule.

Open dairy cattle judging was set for 6:30 p.m., just after the Junior Fair dairy judging.

Market lambs were being weighed Tuesday, from 8 a.m. until the afternoon. The lambs will be judged Wednesday and sold Thursday.

In addition to the livestock judging, the flower specimen show was judged at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday, the same time that the Junior Fair bicycle races were to get started.

The 4-H junior teen fashion review is slated for 7:30 p.m. in the Dayton Power and Light Co. tent.

Eight races are scheduled for Tuesday's harness horse racing program, featuring the OCRA stakes for both 2-year-old trotters and 2-year-old pacers.

Ehrlichman says John Dean lied

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman today told the Senate Watergate committee that John W. Dean III lied.

Ehrlichman, once the chief domestic adviser to President Nixon, said he and others in the White House relied on Dean for information about the Watergate wiretapping affair.

Ehrlichman said in prepared testimony ousted White House counsel Dean's story that the Watergate affair was the center of attention at the White House is "falsely than all the other falsehoods" Dean gave the Senate panel.

"I do not suggest that we were all just too busy to have noticed," Ehrlichman said. "We did notice, and we kept informed through John Dean on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information."

For his own part, Ehrlichman said, "I sincerely do not believe I am guilty of any wrongdoing."

In a 30-page statement prepared for his appearance as a witness before the committee, Ehrlichman defended the Nixon administration against Dean. He accused Dean of a "gallery-pleasing repetition of the old story about fear and paranoia in the White House."

Ehrlichman's opening statement contained no response to the specific allegations against him. Dean says Ehrlichman ordered him to destroy material from wiretapper E. Howard Hunt's White House safe shortly after the Watergate break-in, and said Ehrlichman authorized use of hush money to buy silence from the original Watergate defendants, among other things.

Ehrlichman insisted that Dean rarely informed him about Watergate despite Dean's testimony that the cover-up was a major concern of Ehrlichman and staff chief H. R. Haldeman. Ehrlichman said his log shows 22 meetings with Dean, eight of them on non-Watergate subjects. "Of the remainder," he said, "not all were devoted to talk about aspects of Watergate."

Ehrlichman complained that his name constantly was hyphenated with that of Haldeman as if they were Siamese twins.

"Mr. Haldeman and I had vastly different duties, areas and methods of operation," Ehrlichman said. "I had very little knowledge of what he was doing day by day."

Ehrlichman appeared under subpoena, without any immunity from prosecution. He said he would refute all allegations of criminal activity against him. "I look forward to your questions," he said.

CCI inmate shot trying to escape

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — A Chillicothe Correctional Institute inmate was hospitalized today after being shot while attempting to escape from the prison, authorities reported.

They said Michael Martin, serving a 1-to-3-year term from Cuyahoga County for carrying a concealed weapon had scaled two fences and was running from the prison when he was wounded.

Martin, 28, was admitted to the hospital in poor condition with wounds in the lower back, authorities said.

BEAVER — Services for Mrs. Margaret Bapst, 88, Rt. 1, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Hamerstein Funeral Home with the Rev. Waid C. Radford and Rev. Samuel Stover officiating. Burial will follow in Beaver Union Cemetery.

Mrs. Bapst, the widow of Phillip Bapst Sr., died at 5 a.m. Monday at her home. She was a member of the Beaver Union Methodist Church.

Surviving are eight sons, Earl, 903 Millwood Ave., Washington C. H., George and Wilson of Jackson, Foster, William W., Ronald, Johnnie and Phillip, all of Beaver; and five daughters, Mrs. Wilma Walters, Washington C. H., Mrs. Leona Camink, Mrs. Milicent Kennison and Mrs. Mildred Pidgeon, all of Beaver, and Mrs. Linnie Curtis of Jackson; 32 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Impoundment declared unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's impoundment of funds, declared unconstitutional in connection with a housing program by a federal court, faced a new test today in Congress.

The House has scheduled debate on a bill that would give Congress the power to override any presidential impoundment by a simple resolution passed by either chamber.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey on Monday ruled that Nixon acted illegally in January by freezing funds for federal subsidized housing. The order said Nixon overstepped his executive powers in a matter ordained by Congress.

It was the latest in a series of court rulings denying the constitutionality of Nixon's withholding of funds approved by Congress.

Depending on the source, estimates of the amount Nixon has impounded ranged from $8.7 billion to $18 billion.

The bill before the House would allow either house of Congress to void a presidential impoundment by passing a resolution within 60 days of the action.

It faces a probable veto if enacted, but the House Democratic Steering Committee is pushing for favorable votes.

The Senate already has passed its own version of anti-impoundment legislation, a bill authored by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. that would automatically terminate an impoundment unless both chambers agreed to it within 60 days.

Richey's order voids the Nixon administration's 18-month moratorium on federal subsidies for low-cost housing — a freeze that provoked cries from builders who claimed it would cost the economy more than $10 billion.

The airline said a special rescue flight was being readied at Dubai to go to Benghazi to pick up the stranded passengers and crew as soon as Libyan authorities gave clearance for it to land.

Libyan officials were not immediately available to say what would happen to the hijackers. But it was assumed they would be allowed to go wherever they want, the way previous Arab terrorists who wound up in Libya have been treated.

The major Palestinian guerrilla groups all disclaimed any part in the hijacking. Their executive committee scheduled an emergency meeting in Beirut today to formulate a statement on the matter.

The Beirut newspaper Al Moharrer, which has close contacts with the guerrilla groups, said guerrilla sources called the hijackers "soldiers of fortune exploiting the Palestinian revolution and its prestige to carry out an operation which is far from the morality of the revolution."

committee writes its report. But he said he personally regrets that Nixon has forced the issue.

"I have tried as hard as I know how to find a way around this," he said. "I am unhappy that it is necessary for us to come to the brink of a constitutional confrontation."

The papers served on Nixon by the prosecutor and the committee are different in what they seek, the authority on which they are based, and the ends to which the subpoenaed material is to be put.

As a result, the fights over them might well take divergent courses in the courts.

The Senate committee seeks the tapes to settle publicly whether Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up. Cox wants the tapes to use as possible evidence in secret grand jury proceedings.

The Senate committee issued its two subpoenas on the authority given to it by the Senate itself. Cox, with special independent status within the executive branch, required the signature of a deputy clerk to make his subpoena official.

With events in such rapid motion, few would comment on likely future moves by today that Nixon has decided to ignore the subpoenas. But this could not be confirmed.

Eddie Rickenbacker rites slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Services for Eddie Rickenbacker—the World War I hero and auto racing pioneer born in Columbus 82 years ago—will be held later this week.

Rickenbacker died Monday in Zurich, Switzerland. His body was to be flown back here for burial.

WCH resident recalls meeting famous flyer

Willard R. Everhart, 95, of 809 Washington Ave., relates his contact with the late Eddie Rickenbacker in 1911.

The World War I flying ace was then in his early 20s, working for the Firestone-Columbus Co. which had just entered the automobile industry.

When Mr. Everhart, accompanied by his mother and father-in-law, took a train to Columbus to consider purchasing a car from the company, Rickenbacker met them, at the depot. After taking them to dinner, at which "he spared no expense," Rickenbacker gave them a tour of the manufacturing plant.

Impressed in part by the young man's hospitality, Mr. Everhart returned to Washington C.H. in his new automobile, one of the first of its kind in Fayette County.

Three years later, Rickenbacker was to gain national attention by pushing race cars to unheard of speeds at Daytona Beach.

New train route urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A passenger train line linking Cleveland, Toledo, Akron, Canton, Columbus, Cincinnati and Dayton has been proposed by U.S. Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio.

Taft suggested the line be tied into one that should run between Chicago and Detroit through Toledo in an effort to reduce air and road traffic between Ohio cities.

The lines would be operated by Amtrak, the national rail passenger service.

"It seems clear that continued Amtrak losses, especially on long hauls, mean that Amtrak should be directing its attention toward population corridors and shorter day-time hauls," Taft said.

The metropolitan areas of the seven Ohio cities contain about seven million people.

J. Phillip Richley, director of the state Department of Transportation, said he liked the idea, but did not think it would work.

He said the railroad's World War II vintage cars and track probably wouldn't lure enough auto drivers to make it a success.

Amtrak has announced plans to cut the New York to Kansas City, Mo., train which runs through Columbus and Dayton.

Jobless bill accord eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A compromise bill granting higher jobless benefits to organized labor is expected to be announced today.

The agreed version reportedly provides payments higher than those approved by the Senate, but keeps in force a law prohibiting benefits to employees of a strike-bound firm.

Under present law, maximum payments for a worker with two dependents are $73 a week. Last month, the Senate approved $79. The compromise reportedly is $100.

Spring Valley youth dies of electrocution

WAYNESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 16-year-old Spring Valley youth has been electrocuted in an industrial mishap.

Warren County authorities said Michael Ross died Monday in the accident at the Sullivan Potato Supply Co. north of Waynesville.

Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr., R-Ohio, knew the former board chairman, director and general manager of Eastern Airlines personally.

"His courage and ingenuity both as an aviation pioneer and business leader, during times of peace and war are hallmarks of excellence by any standards," Taft said.

"All Ohioans can take pride in the fact that he was our own. Now, he belongs to history along with other Ohioans and Americans who have made this country great," he said.

Ohioans raised his youthful name above others by naming him to the Ohio Teen Age Hall of Fame when he was 19 for his accomplishments as a pilot and driver.

Years later, he joined the Wright brothers, William Boeing and Alexander Graham Bell in Ohio's Aviation Hall of Fame.

"He was a true pioneer who took man's dream to fly and helped make it into a reality for millions of persons all over the world," Gov. John J. Gilligan said.

Gen. Jack J. Catton, commander of the Air Force Logistics Command at Wright Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, said, "His death has special significance here in Ohio. Many of his achievements are enshrined in the Air Force museum in Dayton. Aviation and the country have lost a true friend."

"For a man who risked his life as many times as he did, you'd think that he was invincible," said James Doherty, an Air Force reservist at Lockbourne Air Force Base. "And then he's gone."

Born in Columbus, Oct. 8, 1890, Rickenbacker was one of eight children of Swiss-born parents. Eddie was 12 when his father died.

He quit school—his only other formal education was an International Correspondence School course in mechanical engineering—and went to work at $3.50 a week at the one-time Columbus Gas Co.

He worked 12 hours each night.

A succession of jobs followed—in a foundry, as a monument polisher, brewery employee and railroad worker.

Then in 1905, he went to work for the Columbus Buggy Co. That started him on a career leading to big-time automobile racing and making him an internationally-known driver.

In World War I, he transferred his talents to aviation where he was an ace pilot.

Ever since, he had been a national figure.

—Abolish a statutory but inoperative board of alcoholism in the State Health Department.

—Revise sick leave accumulations for state employees.

—Qualify Ohio for federal boating safety aid.

—Exempt the for Ohio Fair Plan Underwriting Association from certain fees and taxes.

The Senate, in other action, approved 28-3 and sent to the House a bill rescinding the authority of juvenile courts to commit 16 and 17-year-olds to adult correctional institutions.

Senators passed House bills removing the limit on township cemetery levies, requiring all school districts to provide kindergarten by Sept. 30, 1975, clarifying standards for use of safety glazing materials, and allowing prison inmates completing requirements to receive a high school diploma from his home town high school.

See tight credit, higher interest

WASHINGTON (AP)— A member of the Federal Reserve Board says Americans will pay more for home mortgages and find it tougher to get other credit because of the battle against inflation.

And, rising food prices are prompting some Americans to stock up as a hedge against even higher costs.

Reserve Board member Andrew F. Brimmer said Monday the agency plans to keep a tight money policy "as long as required."

"I know that the picture ... is far from comforting. These consequences are inherent in the use of a restrictive monetary policy as a leading instrument in the fight against inflation," Brimmer told a meeting of the Michigan Savings and Loan League at Mackinac Island, Mich.

The board's monetary actions have included raising bank reserve requirements, and raising the discount rate on money borrowed from federal reserve banks by commercial banks to 7 per cent, the highest rate since the 1920s, he said.

As a result of these actions and high demand for loans, the bank prime interest rate on loans has steadily increased this year to 8½ per cent.

The effect on consumers, Brimmer said, is higher interest rates, including on home mortgages, and a shortage of credit. He indicated that interest rates will keep rising for at least the immediate future.

While recent economic indicators suggest the pace of economic activity is slowing, credit demands appear likely to remain quite heavy for some time, Brimmer said.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press survey of supermarkets shows customers are stocking up on food in the face of sharply rising prices. Many stores have taken advantage of the lifting of the price freeze to mark up many food items, particularly pork, poultry and eggs, the survey showed.

The Phase 4 program announced last week allows food processors and retailers to pass on to the consumer cost increases in raw agricultural products. Beef prices remain frozen until Sept. 12.

Administration officials have said there will be a sharp rise in food prices temporarily, but they predicted that the grocery bills will level off as supplies increase.

In another development, the Agriculture Department indicated Monday that vegetables will be more expensive this summer, though supplies will be larger than last year.

And the Cost of Living Council said it has granted an exemption from the price freeze for the fall line of clothing.

The council said "drastic market disruption" of the production and distribution of textile products would have resulted if the exemption had not been granted to six trade associations.

A high pressure area centered over the Eastern states, that brought fair weather to Ohio overnight was moving slowly east and southeast out of the state today.

As the high leaves Ohio, a warm front will move northward across the state, accompanied by showers and thunder-showers. The front is expected to pass north of Lake Erie by Wednesday morning.

Warm, humid conditions will prevail over Ohio for the next few days, along with showers and thundershowers. Highs will range from the mid 80s to low 90s. Overnight lows will be around 70.

Fair weather dominated Ohio overnight, although showers and thundershowers threatened the western edge of the state at daybreak. Showers and thundershowers were falling at dawn in Indiana and Kentucky.

No rain was reported over the Buckeye State between early Monday afternoon and daybreak today.

Warm with daily showers or thundershowers Thursday through Saturday. Highs 80 to 85 north and in the mid to upper 80s south. Lows from the mid 60s to low 70s.

Storms rake midcontinent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms cracked across much of the midcontinent today after spawning tornadoes and cloudburst rains in scattered areas from the northern Plains to the middle Mississippi Valley.

The pilot of an Ozark Air Lines turbojet which crashed near St. Louis' Lambert Field in a blinding thunderstorm Monday night said his plane was hit at least once by lightning and may have flown through a tornado. At least 36 persons died in the crash.

South Dakota's capital city of Pierre was hit by a twister that injured 10 persons slightly late Monday and caused damage in a two-block-wide area seven to nine blocks long.

Four tornadoes touched down near Waseca, in southern Minnesota, uprooting trees and downing power lines and buildings. No personal injuries were reported.

Heavy rains swamped Uniontown, Ky., Monday evening. More than 4½ inches hit the Ohio River town 30 miles southwest of Evansville, Ind. Flash flood warnings were issued for the area today.

Rockford, Ill., was drenched by 1.71 inches of rain in one hour just before midnight. Winds hit 54 miles per hour.

In Chicago, heavy rains swept through after midnight, causing some flooding and breaking power lines.

Fair to partly cloudy skies prevailed over most regions outside the mid-continent.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 44 at Arcata, Calif., to 90 at Phoenix, Ariz., and Needles, Calif.

Officer slays woman, self

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Dayton patrolman and a woman employee of the Dayton Police were killed early today in what police say was an apparent murder-suicide.

A spokesman for the department said Patrolman Ralph P. Cellars, 39, apparently walked into the records section of the Safety Building shortly after 7 a.m. and shot and killed Jacquelyn Ebert, 34, a data processing employee.

Police said Cellars then turned the gun on himself.

Stock list goes lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices dipped today after a six-day rally, and analysts generally attributed it to the latest Watergate developments as well as higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 4.59 at 908.56 as declining issues on the Big Board held a 2-to-1 lead over advances in relatively light trading. The blue-chip indicator had closed Monday up over 2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index was down .01 at 23.29. Syntex, down 1¼ at 101¼ after making dramatic recent gains, was the Amex volume leader.

The Big Board's broad-based index of some 1,500 common stocks was down 0.33 at 56.96.

Boise Cascade, up ¼ at 13½, was the Big Board's volume leader, followed by American Airlines, up ¼ at 10½, and Fannie Mae down ½ at 18½.

High prices seen for soybeans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soybean prices at the farm during the crop year beginning Sept. 1 could average about $4.11 per bushel if projected production and export orders are realized, an Agriculture Department economist says. The estimate was made by Jimmy L.

Matthews of the Economic Research Service in the July issue of the agency's "Fats and Oils Situation" production.

For the 1972-73 season, soybean growers are expected to receive a record $4.25 per bushel, compared with $3.03 in 1971-72. Matthews said. The previous high of $3.33 was in 1947-48, he said.

Matthews uses several economic models to show various price possibilities for the 1973 soybean crop. They ranged from a farm price average of $3 per bushel to a high of $4.50 depending on the supply and demand situation.

Matthews also speculated that 1973-74 soybean prices could average "at least as high" as the expected $4.25 for 1972-73.

Matthews uses a crop production of 1.588 billion bushels in projecting a farm price average of $4.11 per bushel in the coming crop year. The crop forecast was based on the department's July 1 reports on acreage and trends in the industry.

The first official USDA estimate of 1973 soybean production, based on field inspections, will be announced Aug. 9.

Matthews contends that the farm price could average $4.50 per bushel if the Soviet Union buys 2.5 million metric tons (about 92 million bushels) from a short 1973 crop of 1.462 billion bushels, and the fishmeal supply from Peru remains scant.

"An additional 10 per cent depreciation of the dollar on top of these factors could push soybean farm prices to near the $5 per bushel level," Matthews adds.

However, Matthews warns that relatively low soybean prices at the farm, about $3 per bushel, could result next season if a bumper crop is produced next fall. Russia does not buy any beans, Brazil boosts soybean exports sharply and Peruvian fishmeal makes a comeback.

Traffic Court

Judge Reed M. Winegardner fined seven drivers a total of $542 and costs, and ordered 30 bonds amounting to $808 forfeited in Municipal Court traffic cases Monday afternoon.

The judge also fined two persons $100 in non-traffic cases. Homer Anders, 41, of 726 S. North St., and William G. Henderson, 27, of Bloomingburg were fined $50 each in addition to court costs. Anders was charged with intoxication; Henderson with disturbing the peace. Other cases before the court were:

Extend injunction in service case

HEATH, Ohio (AP) — Licking County Common Pleas Judge Walter Bolton has extended for two weeks his July 9 injunction blocking the Forest Hills Utility Co. from cutting off water and sewer services to the Forest Hills subdivision.

The injunction stems from a rate dispute between the company and the Forest Hills Lot Owners Association that began five years ago. The injunction will be in force until Aug. 6.

Judge Bolton also granted a counter motion by the company asking for a hearing on its request to dissolve the earlier injunction. He will hear arguments on that request Friday.

Hirsute physiognomy

Hairy faces — that's what we see now in abundance and variety on Washington C. H. streets.

Only yesterday, as the time crowd flies, people tended to look askance at a man with long sideburns; moustaches were thought a bit precious; whiskers were suspect. Except, of course, on an occasional aged academic: everyone knew professors were eccentric, and tolerably forgave them such departures from the norm.

Then it came the young rebels, dissenters, hippies, Establishment

Malcolm Cowley remembers

The story goes that when the great Finnish composer Jan Sibelius was informed that the critics had savaged his latest work, he laughed heartily and asked, "Has anyone ever seen a statue of a critic?"

The point was well taken. Most criticism, whether musical, artistic or literary, vanished into the morgue, perhaps to be resurrected by an eager scholar who is, as it were, building a statue of some creative figure.

In our time, for example, few American writers have been subjected to the abuse that Ralph Ellison has taken for persistently rejecting the stereotype of the "black writer." But one can be confident that Ellison's "Invisible Man" will remain one of the great works of 20th Century American fiction.

However, there is one American critic whom I must exempt from this generalization. Maybe because he is also a distinguished poet, rather than a full-time kibitzer, Malcolm Cowley has always impressed me as a man of singular perception.

MORE THAN 30 years ago I "discovered" Cowley in the pages of a weekly magazine and, on his advice, began to read William Faulkner — then a neglected figure in American letters. From there he led me to Scott Fitzgerald and others of the "lost generation."

When his "Exile's Return" appeared in 1951, I devoured it in one sitting, and

So, after all these months, we are going to get the cross-Alaska oil pipeline.

But there is no rest for the weary: now that the estimated ten-billion-barrel supply of crude oil that is waiting for exploitation under the North Slope field is to be made available, we are faced with the im-foes — call them what you like. They began to sport long hair and beards, mainly as an apparent gesture of defiance.

The practice caught on, but there was a difference. Men both young and middle-aged, and a few pushing senior citizen status as well, began sprouting hirsute adornment. Not necessarily in defiance of the established order, though; the difference was that this kind of facial decoration began to seem like fun, an expression of individual taste.

found it invaluable in my own writing — from a different perspective — on the 1920s. Although we have never met or corresponded, I feel a deep indebtedness to him for the doors he opened, the corners he illuminated.

Most of his friends and contemporaries — Thomas Wolfe, Ernest Hemingway, Scott Fitzgerald, John Dos Passos, to mention only a few — are gone, but fortunately Cowley is still among us and at his desk. Viking has just issued his coda on the "lost generation" — "A Second Flowering" — and it is a poignant, moving book.

(If we did not live in the time of the corruption of the word, I would say "brilliant," but ever since some luminary used that word to describe "Portnoy's Complaint," I have dropped it from my vocabulary.)

"A Second Flowering" consists of a series of vignettes of nine of Cowley's friends and acquaintances, but it is far more than simple a collection of mini-biographies. In effect, he employs his cast of characters to limn an era in American life.

I was, for example, suddenly struck by the difference between his generation — roughly born with the century — and mine: the post-World War I crop. He points out that, properly speaking, they were never "lost," they had a solidarity and a sense of common experience. I would put it a little differently: they had to be "found" before they could get lost, they had to have illusions before they could become disillusioned.

So here we are in an era when all sorts of men — baseball players, garbage collectors, store clerks, mailmen, shopkeepers, doctors and lawyers, teachers, even more than a few business executives — treat themselves to beards, moustaches and sideburns in marvellous array. There hasn't been anything like it for several generations.

We like to think of it as reflecting the growth of individuality and independence of spirit. Whether or not that is the case, it makes the male physiognomy a lot more interesting than it used to be.

FOR YEARS I have been trying to make sense out of my generation, and as I read Cowley I realized that, to oversimplify, we were the faceless ones. We were never found, so we couldn't get lost; we grew up without illusions and simply walked into the grinder: the Depression and then the War.

To Cowley and his friends, World War I was a great adventure; to us World War II was mechanized boredom tempered by occasional danger.

After three, four or five years who wanted to go home, rush to the American Legion clubhouse, and talk about the glorious old days on Biak or in Sicily or Normandy? We merely vanished into society doggedly, determined to prevent our children from repeating our joyless history.

What Cowley beautifully conveys is the ebullience of his associates, the zest with which they took the world to be their oyster. Curiously I am struck by their essential innocence, which reminds me of one of the most engaging qualities of my daughter and her peers. Frankly, I am envious: why did my generation get dealt a busted flush?

Finally, the sole survivor is in the position to mop up — he has outlived his enemies. Cowley, in contrast, has dealt gently with some rather ungente types. His is a compassionate farewell to his comrades.

through Canada, it should do something to mollify Sen. Mondale of Minnesota and Bayh of Indiana, who are angry because the Alaskan oil won't be moving directly overland to Midwest markets. Natural gas is a substitute for oil both for home and industrial or public utility use.

With the Alaskan natural gas supply available to Midwest housewives and industrialists, a much bigger fraction of the oil and gasoline that comes from Kansas and Oklahoma sources could be segregated for automobiles and farm tractors.

When you come right down to it, the paucity of available natural gas is at the bottom of our energy crisis. When the clean air laws in various states prohibited the burning of high sulfur coal to make electricity, our public utility tycoons turned to natural gas because its price, as dictated by the federal government, was pleasingly low.

But the gas industry, selling at the controlled price, couldn't generate the funds necessary to discovering and exploiting new fields. As the old fields ran out, the utilities began burning more and more oil distillates; they even made big inroads on the supply of household oil. (Remember this when you are freezing next winter.)

The 1972 level of distillate use by electric utilities was double that of 1971, and almost triple that of 1970. Where the utilities had consumed only 8,000 barrels of distillate oil a day in 1967, they were burning 186,000 barrels daily in 1972. The latter figure is 80 per cent of the total distillate consumption of all the American railroads in 1971, or 40 per cent of the daily diesel fuel used in the trucking industry, or 125 per cent of the diesel requirements of U.S. farm machinery.

WITH THE FARM figure in mind, it is easy to grasp the indirect importance of Alaskan natural gas to Minnesota and Iowa farmers. It should be crusade enough for Sen. Mondale to persuade the Canadian government to help with the construction of a natural gas pipeline from the Alaskan tundra all the way to Winnipeg, Minneapolis and Chicago.

As a matter of fact, a third and perhaps even a fourth pipeline will have to be constructed in the still distant future to carry crude oil south from Alaska to the U.S. Some of our major oil companies are convinced by exploratory drilling that there is a big offshore oilfield in the Arctic Ocean running parallel to the onshore North Slope field.

If and when this offshore oil becomes available, the North Slope-Valdez pipeline would be too overloaded to carry it. If the third and fourth pipelines were to go through Canada, everybody would be satisfied and Sen. Mondale could run for President on the accomplishment.

Hal Boyle . . . Single women under attack

By BAYO ROTIBI
Associated Press Writer
LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A "jihad"— Moslem holy war— being waged by emirs in Nigeria's Islamic north against prostitution has stripped many cities of their spinsters.

Single women started fleeing the north a few weeks ago in the wake of orders by the angry religious leaders demanding they get married or face dire consequences.

The emirs claim the severe West African drought that has hit Nigeria's arid north is due to the immorality of single women.

In Minna, in Nigeria's Northwestern State, unmarried women were given a week to find husbands.

Wives who had deserted their matrimonial homes were ordered to return to their husbands immediately or face expulsion from the town.

Many women fled rather than shop for husbands in the short time allowed. Others preferred remaining single, claiming the young men available for marriage were not ready to shoulder responsibilities.

The emirs say prostitution, which they claim has become widespread in the strongly Moslem north, not only violates Moslem law but "disorganizes married homes and mars the fortunes of young men."

One man in Minna disagreed, arguing prostitutes contribute to the "social happiness of the town," one local newspaper reported.

In the university town of Zaria, the emir, Alhaji Mohammadu Aminu, summoned single women to his palace and lectured them on Islamic morality.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Marriage has little chance of success

DEAR ABBY: My problem is driving me up a wall. I met a most charming lady about six months ago. We are both middle aged. I'm divorced and so is she. Three times. It was love at first sight for both of us and we were headed straight for matrimony when I discovered we had a few differences. I'll name some.

She wants to live way up North. I prefer the South. She's a real swinger and likes to be on the go all the time. If she had her way she'd eat breakfast, lunch, and dinner out, and make the rounds of the bars every night. I don't care to go that much.

She loves people and never met a stranger. It takes me a while to warm up to people. Her overly friendly ways, plus her D cup, which she flaunts a lot, has led her into a lot of trouble. She does have the gift of forgiving and forgetting, which I do not have.

When I pointed out our differences, she offered to fix me up with some of her girl friends, which I didn't go for.

She says she loves me and wants to marry me, but I would have to change my ways. I don't think I could.

There is such a strong physical attraction between us, I can't give her up. What do you think the chances of a successful marriage are between us?

TORN UP IN PALM SPRINGS
DEAR TORN: Like a snowball in Palm Springs. In August.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl with the same problem most girls my age have. Parents who think I'm still a baby liking boys who don't even notice me and not doing as well in school as I should be doing, but now I have a really big one.

I was looking for a blouse I had worn only once and threw it in the dirty clothes hamper when I came across a whisky bottle in the bottom of the clothes hamper.

Now I know why my mother has been taking a nap lately when I'd come home from school. And why she seemed so peppy sometimes and so low and unhappy at other times.

Both Mom and Dad have a drink before dinner. Maybe two, but neither one of them ever had a drinking problem that I knew about. Should I tell Dad? Or should I tell Mom I found the bottle? Or should I just keep my mouth shut?

WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR WORRIED: Tell your Mom you found the bottle and are worried about her. Tell her, too, that even though parents don't usually take advice from their children, you wish she would call Alcoholics Anonymous. Anyone who "hides" whisky has a drinking problem. (P.S. There is a group called ALATEEN for teenagers of parents with that problem. A.A. is listed in your phone book. Call and inquire.)

DEAR ABBY: I married a young well-to-do widower. (No children.) I saved myself for marriage, which wasn't easy for a good-looking, popular, 28-year-old woman.

Everybody thought I was the luckiest girl in the world to start out married life with a completely furnished home. I am not complaining because I think I'm lucky, too, but after three or four months I felt uncomfortable sleeping in the same bed John and his first wife had slept in for six years.

I asked John if we could get a new bed. He said no, it would be a needless expense. (He can well afford it, and he isn't tight.) Then I got to thinking about the memories and associations John had in that bed with his first wife, and it bothered me, so I asked him again. Again he said no.

Last week, without John's knowledge, I made a deal with a furniture store to pick up our bedroom set, and trade it in on a new one. I used my own money to pay the difference.

When John found out what I had done he was furious. He didn't speak to me for three days and even threatened to send me back to my mother. He's still sulking a little.

Can YOU understand my feelings, Abby? How can I make John understand them? Or am I out of line?

SECOND WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Yes, I can understand your feelings, and you are not out of line. You can make John understand by telling him exactly how you feel—and why.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 25

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

You may still be having useful ideas, but not the opportunity to apply them immediately. Be patient, and don't try to get ahead of yourself.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Fine influences! You should be able to hurdle almost any obstacle now, but continue to avoid emotionalism — also impulsiveness and extremism.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Study propositions and the people behind them. Neither make agreements too quickly nor dally until you lose chances. Use that good judgment of yours.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

A day in which the Cancerian should shine! Now's the time to capitalize on your top-flight ideas; to add the novel twist that boots your project to the finish line.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Be prepared for competition, opposition to your plans. If aware that these exist, you can start the day with the premise that you CAN manage them — and you will!

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Tact and finesse should help you to attain ends you could not achieve by force. Be especially diplomatic in dealings with superiors.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be tactful in family circles, all personal contacts. Recurrences of old hassles are possible if you are not on guard.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Don't force issues now. Like Gemini, the odds are against you and you'll gain more by waiting — and studying. But look ahead confidently. Avoid negative thinking.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

You may be tempted to take an unexpected fling in money matters and, if your judgment is as good as it usually is, it should pay off.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Do not be impulsive, but neither hold off action because of uncertainty over your abilities. Curb doubts and fears. You DO have ability: Back it with self-confidence.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Inspiration at a peak now. A unique idea you have can be carried off with just the right touch of ingenuity to make it work.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Keep your head and maintain the pace that's best for you. Don't let others distract you with ideas of doubtful worth — especially if they involve heavy spending.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with many qualities with which to win first-rate success: a strong individuality, a genius for leadership and usually fine gifts of organization and salesmanship. Do try to curb a tendency toward overaggressiveness, however, or you could make many enemies as you follow your road to the top.

Census data shows black gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says black Americans have shown progress in some areas, notably education where twice as many attend college today than five years ago, but that they lag behind whites in most social and economic areas.

The report issued Sunday said that about 727,000 blacks enrolled in college in 1972, double that of 1967. The number of whites enrolled last year was 7.4 million.

The median family income for blacks in 1972 was $6,900, compared with $11,500 for whites — the same disparity as in 1967, the report said.

There also was evidence that the number of poor blacks increased last year, while that of poor whites decreased.

About 33 per cent of the black population, 7.7 million, were said to have been below the 1972 poverty level, compared with 9 per cent, 16.2 million, of the white population.

In addition, the jobless rate for blacks and other nonwhites was 10 per cent, the same as in 1971, compared with a drop from 5.4 to 5 per cent for whites, the report said.

Pointing to their progress in education, the report said that about 18 per cent of all blacks between 18 and 24 were in college, up from 13 per cent from 1967.

And there was a decline in the high school dropout rate for blacks between 14 and 24 — from 23.9 per cent to 17.8 over the five-year period. The 1972 white dropout rate was 10.7 per cent.

In addition, black high school graduates between 20 and 29 jumped sharply — from 52 per cent to 65 per cent over the same period, the report said.

Significant gains also were noted in the number of blacks holding elective office — 2,600 in 1972, twice the number as in 1968.

Also the proportion of nonwhites earning more than $10,000 increased from 22 per cent in 1966 to 30 per cent in 1971, the bureau reported.

The proportion of white families earning more than $10,000 was 54 per cent but blacks made income gains in some northern and western states, and in some categories exceeded that of whites. Young black families where the husband was under 35 and both husband and wife worked had a median income of $11,800, compared with $11,206 for white families in the same situation, the survey showed.

The black population in 1972 was 23.4 million, up 1.8 million since 1967. The survey was based on 1970 census data and information from governmental and private agencies, the bureau said.

ART DEMONSTRATION — Miss Helen Slavens, local artist, presented a talk and demonstration at the Washington Jr. High School cafeteria at the Senior Lunch Program, sponsored by the Community Action Commission. After painting the oil on the easel to demonstrate the ease with which simple pictures can be produced, she and one of her former students, Chapman Tillis, 84, display two paintings he has produced during the last two years.

Art demonstration given for Senior Citizens

Miss Helen Slavens, who works in the office of Craig's, demonstrated her avocation, painting, to the members of the Senior Lunch Program last Thursday. She told the group that no one is too old to begin enjoying the pleasure of creating their own drawings or paintings. She pointed out that Grandma Moses, a renowned painter of American farm life, came into her own after her 80th birthday.

While speaking to the group, Miss Slavens produced an oil landscape which was quite impressive, demonstrating to the group how easily simple pictures can be painted.

She then introduced Chapman Tillis, 84, of 805 E. Temple St., whom she had had as a student at the Senior Citizens Center, where she taught for four years. Mr. Chapman showed two oil landscapes that he had painted during the past two years. Mrs. Slavens remarked that he had refinished the frames as well as painting the pictures they contained.

The Senior Lunch Program is sponsored by the Community Action Commission to offer elderly persons in the community proper nutrition and as well as recreational activities, and guest speakers are invited whenever possible.

The program, which began earlier this month, has a capacity of 50 persons, but thus far only 35 have enrolled. It is limited to persons over 60 years of age who qualify as physically handicapped, financially limited, socially isolated or who are patients at long term care facilities.

Throughout the state there are 28

such programs, sponsored by local community action groups. They have been funded for six months through the Organization of Economic Opportunity, and will serve some half-million meals in all. John Borrowman and Mrs. Edna Naylor, of the local Community Action Commission, feel that these programs play a vital role in the daily routine of its participants.

Anyone who is interested in the program, a senior citizen, volunteer driver, or one who has a special interest and would like to speak to the group, should call the Community Action Commission, 110 E. Market St., at 335-7282.

Wedding plans are complete

Miss LaVonne Coulter, bride-elect of Pfc. Keith Linville, has completed plans for their open-church wedding at 7:30 p.m. July 28, in the South Side Church of Christ. Rev. Charles J. Richmond, pastor, will officiate for the double-ring ceremony.

A one-half hour of wedding selections will precede the ceremony, by Mrs. Charles Richmond, vocalist, and Mrs. Frank Creamer, organist.

Miss Coulter has asked her sister, Miss Rebecca J. Coulter, to be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin and Mrs. Keith Gibson, both of Cincinnati. Miss Leah Trout will be the flower girl.

Daniel McLaughlin will serve as best man. The groomsmen will be Keith Gibson and Paul Hasselbeck of Cincinnati. An additional usher will be Sp-4 Walter L. Grimm of Fort Bragg, N.C.

Hostesses for the reception to be held in Fellowship Hall of the church following the marriage will be Mrs. Sam Trout, Mrs. John Trout and Mrs. Walter Smithson. Miss Joyce George and Miss Debbie Coulter will preside at the guest book.

Shower honors Miss Lanum

Miss Linda Lanum, bride-elect of Mark Lucas, was honor guest at a lingerie shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dennis Garringer. Assisting hostess was Miss Lynn Milstead.

Games were won by Mrs. Douglas White, Mrs. Joseph Lanum, and Mrs. Garringer, who in turn, presented them to the honor guest.

Miss Lanum opened many gifts from a table decorated in pink and white, with candles and a miniature bridal couple in the center. Punch, cake, mints and nuts, were served to the invited guests.

They were Mrs. Joseph Lanum Jr., and Mrs. William Lucas Jr., mothers of the betrothed couple, Mrs. Grace Lanum and Mrs. William Lucas Sr., grandmothers, Mrs. Don Dasher, Mrs.

White, Mrs. Tom Parsley, Mrs. Sam Hill, and the Misses Wanda Huff, Ginny Newman, Gwen Garringer, and Mrs. Roger Garringer.

A NOSE IS THE DIFFERENCE — Darby L. (1), with Billy Stevens driving, held on to edge Atom Cloud (4) by a nose in the eighth race Monday night at the Fayette County Fair. The 4-year-old, owned by Stevens and Jerry Warner, both of

Todd drives four fair race winners

By KIRK ARNOTT
Record-Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Frank Todd drove winners in all four heats of the 3-year-old Ohio Colt Racing Association trotting stakes Monday night at the Fayette County Fair, turning in the outstanding driving performance of the evening. The veteran driver piloted Right Turn to wins in 2:08.1 and 2:11.2 and May to victories in 2:09.4 and 2:10.

Fayette County's only winning representatives were Darby L., a brown 4-year-old, and driver Bill Stevens. Darby L. won both heats of a pace, the second by a nose. The times for the Stevens and Jerry Warner-owned pacer were 2:12.2 and 2:10.1.

The first of Todd's victories (his son, Bob, also drove a winner) came in the very first dash. Right Turn moved away from Paul Elrod's Shummy Tara on the final turn to win by a neck.

Right Turn came back to win the sixth race in a tight race with Dudley Moon's Mindy Honor. The bay, owned by E. DeWine, Jr., Jamestown, won the stakes trophy for the fastest heat.

MAY, a mare owned by Hawley Todd, Miami, won for the fourth and fifth times in 11 starts in the second and sixth races for Todd's other wins. Both wins were by comfortable margins.

Darby L. picked up his first two wins in six starts this year, taking both ends of a pace for non-winners of $2,000 this year. The 4-year-old was guided to the lead by Stevens on the backstretch in the third, winning in good shape over Rhythm Pride.

In the eighth race, Darby L. again made his move on the backstretch, then dueling with Atom Cloud the last eighth of a mile. In a photo finish, it was Darby L. by just a nose.

Bob Todd, the doctor's son, drove Carib, a 5-year-old bay mare, owned by Wilmington's Darbyshire Farms, to an easy victory in 2:12 in the fifth race. Carib provided the night's biggest win payoff, $8.60. It was a slim night for longshots.

In the fifth race, the Tri-County

Pace, a former Washington C.H. resident's 3-year-old won the first time it ever went behind a starting gate. Winning Cross, owned by Robert Carpenter, now of Lebanon, was driven to the win by Alvin Long in 2:11.

Some of the area's top 2-year-olds, both trotters and pacers, will take the track Tuesday night as the OCRA stakes for the youngsters are held.

Also on tap Tuesday is a $1,500 claiming race. Post time is 7:30 p.m.

Smith, Brickles clout HRs

WCH tops Fairborn on Cobb's no-hitter

A splendid no-hit pitching performance from Glenn Cobb guided the Washington C.H. Little League All-Star team to its second consecutive victory of the District 8 tournament at Wilson Field Monday night.

Cobb's masterpiece on the mound, coupled with a heavy-hitting offensive show and a solid defensive effort, blanked Fairborn American by a 5-0 score.

The Fairborn American team filed a protest in Monday night's game, complaining of an ineligible Washington C.H. player, but the protest was rejected by Al Bisqueley, District 8 Little League administrator. Cobb fanned a total of five Fairborn American batters in picking up the pitching win while he received plenty of offensive support from Joe Smith and Larry Brickles who pounded first inning home runs.

ACTUALLY, the contest was decided in the first inning when the Washington C.H. stars scored all five of their runs. Washington C.H. mounted scoring threats in the fourth inning when two runners reached the bases.

Smith clouted a three-run homer in the opening inning after Fred Jones had reached first on a fielding error and Marty Huffman doubled. Following Smith's three-run blow, Tom Bath singled and scored on a two-run circuit shot by Brickles.

Washington C.H. was held hitless in the second and third innings, but shortstop Todd Terrell and Ronnie West both singled in the fourth inning before the threat was quieted.

Washington C.H.'s seventh hit of the game came in the fifth frame when Huffman singled.

Ramsey was tagged with the pitching setback for Fairborn American. Washington C.H. is scheduled to entertain Dayton Hard Scrabble at Wilson Field at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The survivor of the Washington C.H.-Dayton Hard Scrabble game will play on Friday.

Anderson seeks victory tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An undaunted Dick Williams and a determined Sparky Anderson reflect the intense mood of tonight's 44th All-Star baseball game at plush Royals Stadium.

Williams left a hospital bed after a recent appendectomy to lead the American League team while National League Manager Anderson vows: "I'm here for just one thing—to win."

The setting is particularly dramatic, considering that All-Star games in the past have been brushed off by some players as insignificant exhibitions.

But Anderson has expressed a fierce desire to beat the American League in the midsummer classic.

"I'll try to figure out what moves Williams will be making, and everybody on my staff will be ready to help out," says the Cincinnati Reds' manager.

A sellout crowd of more than 40,000 will be on hand at baseball's newest park while millions more watch the starstudded affair on national television (NBC). Game time is 8:30 p.m., EDT.

Anderson isn't taking this game lightly for a reason. He feels he has something to prove.

"I'd like to be on the winning side for a change," says Anderson, who has lost two World Series and was the losing manager in the 1971 All-Star Game at Detroit. "That's why I picked some of the ballplayers I picked. I wanted guys who could come off the bench and help me win."

Along with the managers, the players by have shown an uncommon competitive desire. Both third baseman Ron Santo and shortstop Chris Speier were injured last week, but will be in the National League's starting lineup.

The American League's starting pitcher, Catfish Hunter of the Oakland A's, a 15-game winner, will face Rick Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals in an attempt to cut into the National League's 24-18 lead in the series which started back in 1933. There has been one tie in All-Star competition.

"It's a great honor for me," said Wise, an 11-game winner who was chosen over more illustrious names because he had the most rest.

Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris will lead off for the American League, followed by left-handed hitter Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, the team's second baseman. First baseman John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals and rightfielder Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's, the 3-4 hitters, are both left-handed.

SPARKY ANDERSON

After centerfielder Amos Otis of the Royals, the AL's No. 5 hitter, comes lefty Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees. He'll play left field.

Catcher Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox will be No. 7 in the batting order, followed by third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore

Orioles and Hunter.

Left fielder Pete Rose and second baseman Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds will bat 1-2 in the National League order. Centerfielder Cesar Cedeño of the Houston Astros, first baseman Henry Aaron and right fielder Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs will hit 3-4-5 for the Nationals.

The rest of the order includes Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, Santo, Speier and Wise.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion blames the injury which forced him to miss his first All-Star game on aggressive base running. Now he is having second thoughts about hustling on the base paths.

Legion team meets Ironton in tourney

The Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion baseball team will collide with Ironton at 8 p.m. tonight in the District 7 American Legion baseball tournament at Hillsboro's city park.

Kip Young, who turned in a sensational freshman season at Bowling Green State University this season, stymied Ironton with a nifty four-hitter Monday night as Hillsboro nudged the Lawrence Countians by a 1-0 score.

Washington C.H. and Ironton will be matching identical 1-1 tourney records in tonight's 8 p.m. contest. Manager Dennis Morris' Post 25 team was clouted 13-2 by always-tough Portsmouth Sunday night and picked up a forfeit win over Waverly, Ironton, on the other hand, topped Chillicothe Post 757 by a 6-2 count in the tournament's opening round.

In other action at Hillsboro Monday night, Portsmouth posted its second straight win by downing Chillicothe Post 62 by a 6-3 score in the tourney's nightcap.

Greenfield, which lost its opening round game with Highland County rival Hillsboro, and Chillicothe Post 757, an opening round victim of Ironton, will clash in tonight's 6 p.m. game.

State election reform hopes dim

By KEN DAVIS

Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Major reform of Ohio's political campaign financing laws teeters these days on the edge of limbo for this session of the 110th General Assembly.

A last-minute nudge by Gov. John J. Gilligan in a letter to the legislature may rescue reform from the present session's waste basket, but Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, doubts it.

Matia is author of Senate Bill 46, a reform bill stalled in committee since last February.

In a letter to Gilligan, the Westlake legislator wrote, "Although S. B. 46 is a step in the right direction, I now believe that we should seek even greater reforms. Accordingly, I am having the Legislative Service Commission draft a substitute bill which will be far more comprehensive than the original S.B. 46."

Matia said, "At this stage of the current session it would seem to me most unwise to rush through a major campaign financing reform bill without adequate consideration."

But, Gilligan argued "There is still ample time to give these bills adequate hearings, to debate their merits, to amend them as you see fit, and to adopt them before you adjourn."

The governor referred to Matia's Senate bill and to House Bill 705, both of which stiffen present laws.

Matia informed Gilligan that he would head a subcommittee to consider campaign financing reform bills after the summer recess of the legislature.

But, neither Matia nor Gilligan appeared at odds over the need for reform. "The cost of running for office is getting out of hand, and unless we put on some controls only the very wealthy will be able to be candidates," said Matia.

In his letter to the legislature, Gilligan called reform imperative for the survival of our free election process and the restoration of public confidence in our system of self-government.

Under Matia's proposed substitute bill, no individual except a candidate, his family or his party could contribute more than $10,000 or one penny times the total population of the district, whichever is less.

Candidates, their families and their parties could not contribute more than five times that limit.

Corporations, labor unions, partnerships or other business and labor groups could contribute to any party, candidate or committee.

A candidate could have only one committee for receiving contributions and no campaign expenses could be paid by any person other than the certified treasurer of that committee.

3 equipment ordinances on Council slate

Three ordinances to purchase equipment and a fourth to pay an engineering firm for professional services are on the agenda for the Wednesday night meeting of Washington City Council.

The legislators will meet in the city offices at 7 o'clock. Council has also scheduled a session with Union Township trustees for the same time.

A six-part city manager's report including plans for the 1973 street resurfacing program and allocation and use of County Permissive License Tax funds are on the agenda. City Manager Dan Wolford also expects to discuss a request from South Side Church of Christ for a curb cut for a parking lot development, and will present a request to reject bids received for radio communications equipment.

Wolford is also to report on U.S. 35 improvements, and will seek approval to pay three bills: Calvert Chemical Co., $833.49; Mai Kai Hot Mix, Inc., $1,023, and Colonial Paint Co., $693.75.

The ordinance authorizing payment to C.F. Bird & R.J. Bull, Ltd., for professional services, was tabled at the last Council session when Councilman Joseph O'Brien said he thought the bill had already been paid.

The other ordinances are to authorize Wolford to purchase four typewriters, recording and transcribing equipment from IBM Corp.

VIENNA (AP) — A rolling laboratory equipped with the most modern technical devices is now cruising through the Austrian capital to speed up and facilitate the enforcement of the new environmental laws.

The laboratory examines samples of Vienna's air and water, and monitors the regulated noise level of construction machinery. It also checks on the emissions of Vienna's municipal buses, which run on a nonpolluting fuel mixture, and on the noise made by the city's garbage trucks.

TV Viewing

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Paltrow got the idea while playing touch football in the Bahamas.

His wife, Blythe Danner, was making a movie, "Chokeberry Bay," and with time on his hands he started tossing the ball around on the beach. His wife is now co-starring in the new series "Adam's Rib" at MGM, the same studio where he's working.

"Guys are strange," he said. "They have virility hangups. If a guy's not making out he's joining the skydiving club. If a guy's not making out he's throwing body blows in touch football. It's instant machismo."

The idea was for "ShirtsSkins," one of the wildest, funniest, most outrageous Movies of the Week ABC has ever scheduled. ABC expects to show the film in September. But beneath all that razzledazzle it's really a very pointed character study. ABC is thinking about turning it into a series.

It's about six professional men—doctors, dentists, stockbrokers, the like—who meet once a week for a game of basketball. It stars Rene Auberjonois, Bill Bixby, Leonard Frey, Doug McClure, McLean Stevenson and Robert Walden.

They choose up sides—shirts and skins—and every week the rough and tumble game ends up with bruised knees and elbows and a fight.

To settle an argument a simple idea is suggested: Each side will hide a basketball in plain view somewhere in the city and the other side has to find it. It sounds like innocent fun, but it turns into warfare.

"It's like limited war—then it escalates," said the 29-year-old Paltrow, who produced two plays on Off Broadway before writing the screenplay and serving as co-producer. A native New Yorker, he went south to

New Orleans to attend Tulane University. He also worked three years at a movie studio—carrying film.

"For instance, how did the war in the Congo start? No one knows. The start was insignificant. Then it escalated. It starts with some silliness—then somebody starts throwing punches."

He said, "The guys in the movie are similar to generals. Generals are a very lucky breed of people. They're guys with the best toys to play with. They get to wear fancy uniforms with medals. They're like children. I guess the more technical our society becomes the more silly people become trying to control what they've created."

Paltrow conceived the story as a theatrical movie, as a parallel to war, but he had to scale it down for television.

"It's lighter now," he said. "More delicious for TV. Before it had more bite. It didn't come out conceptually as I intended. I wanted a black, black comedy. I had to alter it for television."

Paltrow said he is not unhappy with the results.

They'll tell automatically

BOSTON (AP) — Automated teller devices, standing alone or embedded in building walls, are gaining rapid favor among U.S. bankers, Arthur D. Little Inc. reports.

First introduced in Europe and Japan several years ago, the card-activated devices for 24-hour banking service first appeared in this country in 1968. Today there are more than 1,000 automated tellers in U.S. banks, and probably twice that many more are on order.

Ask The Lindsay Man

Q. What do I do? My husband doesn't like my coffee.

A. For review, the coffee maker's pledge: "A clean pot, fresh cold tap water, accurate measurements." If that doesn't work, think about soft water. With the minerals removed, it can enhance the taste of coffee. Likewise many other water-based beverages. Small price to pay to keep a husband happy.

Q. Does it matter how often I shampoo my hair each week?

A. Not if conditions are right. Wash and rinse your hair in soft water and you can shampoo daily—and safely. We also recommend a mild non-alcoholic soap which won't dry out your hair and scalp.

Opening lead - nine of clubs.

It would seem that declarer requires a successful spade finesse to make the slam, but actually South has a much better chance than that.

A good rule for declarer to follow - when the outcome of a hand seemingly rests on where a particular card (here, the king of spades) is located - is to start looking for ways and means of making the slam even if the king is wrongly placed.

In line with this, after assessing his prospects, South should realize that he can make the contract regardless of which defender holds the king of spades, if West has the ace of hearts.

So, after taking the ace of clubs, drawing two rounds of trumps and winding up in his hand, South plays a low heart to the king at trick four. If West goes up with the ace, South's worries are over, so let's assume he permits dummy to win with the king.

This does not get West off the hook, because declarer pursues his plan by cashing his remaining clubs, discarding the nine of hearts from his hand on dummy's last club.

Declarer then plays a heart to his unattended queen. West takes the ace but must give up the ghost, whatever he returns. If he plays a spade, declarer's spade loser disappears, and if he plays a heart, South discards a spade from dummy as he ruffs the return in his hand, in that way eliminating dummy's spade loser.

So - oddly enough - when dummy comes down, South prays first that West was dealt the ace of hearts, and it is only when and if East shows up with that card that South prays next that East was also dealt the king of spades.

Gamma Globulin as Protection

One of my close friends came down with hepatitis. Although we were not in immediate contact, with her, we went to see our doctors about a protective shot. Some of us got the shot of gamma globulin, others did not. None of us came down with hepatitis. I am curious about the difference of opinion.

Miss E.B., N.J.

Dear Miss B.:

Gamma globulin is a protective fluid that can modify or prevent disease in some people who have been exposed to some kinds of infectious illnesses. G.G. is a very complex substance and exists in a number of forms. Much confusion is still present about the ideal time for its use and the special diseases that it modified.

In some instances, people are born with diminished or absent gamma globulin. Children with this deficiency are highly susceptible to all kinds of infections. They are given booster shots of G.G. at regular intervals in order to bolster their defense against disease. Here it is very effective.

G.G. is considered in each individual case as a preventive injection, depending on the exact nature and degree of the exposure to the person with infectious hepatitis.

For this reason there may seem to be confusion about your friends who were, and who were not, given injections.

That the judgment of the doctors was correct is the fact that none of you became ill.

I am very susceptible to poison ivy. No one else in my family is burdened by this yearly summer hazard. It seems that I can be a mile away from poison ivy and somehow it gets to me.

Mrs. B.L.J., Ga.

Dear Mrs. J.:

Severe reactions to poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac can actually be considered an allergic reaction. Some people are more sensitive to them than others.

It is well recognized that a certain immunity to these substances exists. Similarly, not all people exposed to golden rod sneeze or have hat fever. Dermatitis, an inflammation of the skin, results in most people when they are in direct contact with the poison ivy plant known as Rhus. However, direct contact with the plant is not always necessary. Exposure to the smoke of burning poison ivy plants can cause this skin eruption.

Animals that run about outdoors can bring their contaminated coats to people.

Those who know they are highly sensitive should study and learn unmistakably the leaves of poison ivy, oak and sumac and then stay away from areas where they grow. Some specialists in allergy have, with some success, desensitized people who are extraordinarily troubled.

In Focus by Charlie Pensyl

You'll want to see the Photography exhibit at the Fayette County Fair this week. The color photography exhibit is the biggest we've ever had. New names appear. Like, for example, Philip Warner. I'd never seen any of Warner's work before, but you should see his blue ribbon slide in the Pictorial Portrait class. That one could easily have taken sweeps.

And Ruthann LaFollette. Some beautiful color slides by Miss LaFollette, including a first in the Abstract and Experimental class. And Susan Rockhold is another young lady who knows how to handle a camera. Believe me, there is much more to using a camera than pointing it in the right direction. Photography is an art; and these two young ladies are mastering that art in a way that will make them both tough contenders in the future.

Sweepstakes awards went to two photographers. These men know photography, the science of the camera and the art of picture making. This is not the first sweeps Stu Gossard has taken. It won't be the last; this boy knows what he is about. This is the first sweepstakes award for Ed Summers. Ed's young. The future holds much for a man with Ed's savvy.

But matching the pleasure of seeing the new ideas presented in the exhibit is the satisfaction of seeing the consistent quality and good taste in the work of Howard Miller, John Halliday and, of course, Stu Gossard. Come to the Fair and see the Photo Exhibit.

U.S. planes hit Cambodian Reds

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian military command said today there was little enemy activity during the night on all fronts.

The command said this resulted from the operations of its ground troops and the bombing by U.S. and Cambodian air forces.

U.S. B52 heavy bombers and F111s from Thailand continued around-the-clock strikes against known and suspected enemy bunkers within a 10-mile radius of Phnom Penh and around outlying provincial capitals isolated by the insurgents. The newest target area is the region of Prek Ho Village, five miles south of here, where the insurgents moved in over the weekend.

During the day Monday, the government used air and ground forces eight miles northwest of Phnom Penh, the command said. It claimed the capture of numerous enemy weapons, including armorpiercing rockets, submachine guns, and 85 rounds of 82mm mortar ammunition.

Three government troops were killed, the command said.

In a delayed report, the command said government soldiers at Battambang, near the Thai border, killed 56 enemy and seized many weapons. Government losses were not reported.

Meanwhile, Premier In Tam said the military situation in Cambodia was going "from bad to worse" every day. But he said that, with about 20,000 additional troops, his government would be able to defend itself after the U. S. bombing stops Aug. 15.

The premier appealed to his countrymen not to avoid the draft, which was launched this month. He said volunteers will have to serve only 15 months, while draftees will serve 18.

In South Vietnam, a government communique said 21 Communist troops were killed in clash near the LaiKhe military base about 25 miles north of Saigon with two government infantrymen killed and three wounded.

The South Vietnamese government today released several hundred more civilian prisoners to the Viet Cong at Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon. More than 800 civilians have been turned over to the Communists since the exchange program was resumed Monday. Nearly 50 have asked to return to Saigon.

A group of 27 prisoners opposed to President Nguyen Van Thieu's government announced that they were asking the International Commission of Control and Supervision to arrange for them to be released in Saigon instead of being railroaded to the Viet Cong.

Seek missing in Pan Am plane crash

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Officials of Pan American World Airways said today the search would go on for those missing after one of its jetliners crashed in the Pacific but all but one of the 79 persons on board were presumed dead.

The airline said the dead included 36 Americans. Twelve bodies have been recovered.

The lone survivor was James Campbell of Madawaska, Ont. The Papeete hospital said he was in satisfactory condition with contusions.

The airline said that, among the 69 passengers, were 28 Americans who boarded the flight in Tahiti and four who boarded in New Zealand. Four of the 10 crew members also were Americans.

One witness to Sunday night's crash said the plane turned to the left as soon as it took off and then started going down.

Pan Am denied suggestions that a defective windshield in the cockpit might have contributed to the crash.

U.S. won't join atom test protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will not join some key allies in protesting the current series of nuclear tests France is conducting in the atmosphere over the South Pacific.

Unlike the positions taken by Japan, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, Nixon administration officials say there is no danger from the blasts.

Besides, they say, an American protest would have no effect and there are diplomatic considerations that weigh against any outspoken U.S. opposition to the tests that began Saturday.

For the record, State Department spokesman Paul Hare said Monday the official U.S. position is to hope for adherence to the 1963 treaty banning atomic testing above ground.

He pointed to past statements to this effect as well as previous expressions of general concern over atmospheric testing as the basis for U.S. policy.

The U.S. attitude contrasted with that of other countries. Peru broke diplomatic relations with France Monday and the Canadian House of Commons unanimously approved a resolution deploring the tests.

Hare, however, declined to characterize the official U.S. attitude toward the actual tests when asked if the administration was troubled by the blast.

When it was pointed out that in the past the United States had stated its "regrets" over French atmospheric testing, administration officials said such statements no longer apply.

Officials privately set forth several reasons for the U.S. reluctance to make any statements on the French tests.

They said that to be more direct, even to the point of repeating past statements of regret, could be construed by France as American interference in its internal affairs, upsetting delicate relations with Paris in other diplomatic areas.

Added to this, the officials said, is the Nixon Doctrine of not attempting to impose an essentially moral position on another nation, particularly when the French attitude has clearly shown it would do no good.

On a more cautious note, some officials indicate the growing but still fragile improvement of U.S. relations with the Peoples Republic of China also is involved.

Nixon is anxious to avoid any action that could hurt U.S.-Peking relations and this involves any criticism of China's nuclear program.

Wheat sale probe enters 3rd day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four months of investigations and two days of public hearings have failed to settle whether the Agriculture Department knew of the extent of the big Soviet wheat purchase before the deal was made.

The issue is the central one in the probe by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, which planned a third day of hearings today.

The General Accounting Office, which conducted its own probe of the 1972 sale, concluded that the Agriculture Department had information that would have led the government to believe the Soviets would need large amounts of wheat.

Joseph R. Ferri, assistant GAO director, testified Monday that U.S. attaches in Moscow, Canada and Australia had made clear that in early 1972 the United States had emerged as a dominant supplier of wheat to the world.

"The information, however, was not effectively used or disseminated," Ferri said.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and Carroll Brunthaver, assistant secretary, said the department had no solid information that the Soviet Union would need large amounts of wheat

Economic crimes become target of Columbus panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus is one of 15 cities participating in a national program to expand the investigation and prosecution of so-called economic crimes, Prosecuting Atty. George Smith said today.

Smith said the Committee on Economic Crime, set up last May by the National District Attorneys Association, will operate with a $532,175 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

He said Columbus will be one of nine participating cities which will hire a full-time special assistant to handle cases of consumer fraud, embezzlement, organized crime, political crimes and crimes involving computers.

Research and technical information will be provided by The Academy for Contemporary Problems and Battelle Memorial Institute. Both have offices here.

Wayne and Paint road jobs get Commission OK

Road projects in Paint and Wayne townships were approved Monday by the Fayette County Board of Commissioners. The townships are to supply materials and the county will furnish labor and equipment.

Projects in Paint Township are Blue Road from Ohio 38 to Danville Road, and West Road, from Danville Road to the Madison Township line. The cost estimate for the two roads totals $32,450.69.

Roads in Wayne Township to be improved are Rock Mills-Good Hope Road, from Miami Trace Road to Ohio 753, and Lough Road, from Gormley Road to the Ross County line. The cost estimate for the two roads is $13,315.69.

Action on bids for the deposit of public funds was deferred for one week to allow County Auditor Mary Morris time to calculate the interest rates. Bidders were the Fayette County Bank, Washington Savings Bank and First National Bank.

Lady Bird tours Italy on vacation

School president hits teacher plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The president of the Ohio Board of Education told Ohio House members Monday that a bill to create a Teacher Education Planning Commission would simply duplicate work already done.

In a letter to the legislature, John R. Meckstroth said plans for major changes in teacher education have already been made and are ready for implementation.

"This proposed bill would create an unnecessary fifth wheel of bureaucracy generating unwarranted delay in the vital responsibility to redesign the preparation of teachers for Ohio's 2.7 million youngsters," Meckstroth wrote.

Twister Involved?

Plane crash at St. Louis fatal to 36

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The pilot of an Ozark Air Lines plane that crashed in a St. Louis suburb thinks he flew through a tornado and is sure the plane was hit by lightning. Authorities say at least 36 persons died.

Ozark Flight 825, which originated in Nashville, Tenn., and was carrying 41 passengers and a crew of three, crashed into a wooded ravine Monday night during a violent thunderstorm.

The Federal Aviation Administration said Arvid Linke, pilot of the turboprop Fairchild 227, radioed shortly before the crash that he believed he was in a tornado and that he had been hit by lightning. Authorities recovered tapes of conversations between Linke and the control tower at Lambert Airport and began today to attempt to determine the cause of the crash that "lit up the sky."

A brief fire followed the impact at 6:45 p.m. EDT as the plane disintegrated, knocking down trees and strewn power lines in its path.

An FAA spokesman said the control tower at the airport lost sight of the aircraft on radar about a mile from the airport at an altitude of about 600 feet.

Authorities said today they had reports of eight survivors in several area hospitals.

Among the injured was Linke, who authorities said was carried from the plane's wreckage. The extent of his injuries was not immediately known. The Red Cross said Beth Williams, the plane's stewardess, was among the victims.

The plane left Nashville at 3:35 p.m. Monday en route to St. Louis. It had made intermediate stops at Clarksville, Tenn.; Paducah, Ky.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; and Marion, Ill.

Winds peaking at 37 miles per hour accompanied a downpour of nearly two inches of rain during the brief storm that came at the time of the crash.

Two giant oak trees stopped the plane's descent just short of an unoccupied gymnasium on the campus of the University of Missouri-St. Louis in suburban Normandy.

Conditions at the airport, although bad, were described by an FAA official as "not bad enough to close down operations."

The crash was the first involving a casualty for Ozark, which resumed flights July 5 after a 71-day strike by mechanics. The airline serves 62 cities in 15 states, mostly in the Midwest.

An Ozark spokesman in Nashville said the aircraft, built by the Fairchild Hiller Corp., was of the type that has been in service for commercial airlines since the mid-1950s.

Assembly action set on lottery

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Action was expected in the General Assembly today to move proposals for a state lottery, an Ohio Vietnam veterans bonus, and repeal of Sunday closing laws nearer reality.

The Senate Ways & Means Committee had the Housepassed lottery bill under consideration as leaders of the two chambers pressed for final action on major issues prior to 1973 adjournment.

After winning 29-1 approval in the Senate, the Senate-House conference committee report on the veterans bonus was before the House for a favorable vote which would send it to the November ballot.

A bill to repeal Ohio's ancient Sunday "blue laws," totally unenforced in recent years, was before a Senate floor session. It already has passed the House, and should go on to Gov. John J. Gilligan without significant opposition.

Committee action was being awaited on other major bills such as state will be held at 2 p.m. Friday in the Church of Christ in Christian Union, with the Rev. Robert Kline officiating. Burial will be in Washington Cemetery.

Friends may call at the Kirkpatrick Funeral Home from 4 until 9 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, and until noon on Friday at the church.

Miami police say they will begin tearing down a fake wall behind a homemade torture chamber to see if the house is hiding other bodies.

Detectives were also expected to dig up the yard around the home of the dead suspect in the murder to see if any bodies are buried there.

The man, Albert Brust, 44, is also suspected by police in the rape-torture of the youth's 15-year-old female companion.

Brust was found dead Saturday after committing suicide by drinking cyanide mixed with chocolate milk, police said.

Inside Brust's house, police said, they found a torture chamber and a bathroom where Brust had sealed the body of Matson.

After killing Matson, Brust allegedly chained, whipped and raped the youth's 15-year-old companion, a runaway from Frankfort, Ky., in a padded torture chamber.

Police say the torture chamber is six feet short on one end where a false wall was erected to which Brust attached chains and other torture paraphernalia.

Police said they wanted to tear the wall down to see if anything was sealed behind it.

Matson's companion told police in nearby Fort Lauderdale last week that the two of them were picked up while hitchhiking and taken to Brust's home, where he ordered them to perform sex acts while he took pictures.

The girl said that when the boy resisted, Brust shot him, hacked his body up and cemented it into a shower stall.

After a preliminary investigation, Fort Lauderdale authorities decided the girl was lying. But when Brust was discovered dead sitting in his back yard, police began checking the story again.

Brust had a criminal record dating back to 1945, police said, but it showed no evidence of deviant sexual behavior.

He had been arrested and convicted of assault in Queens, New York, in connection with a robbery in 1951. He served seven years in prison and was released in 1958.

Divers open Andrea Doria salvage bid

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Two scuba divers plan to dive 245 feet to the ocean floor today for a 10-day salvage assault on the Andrea Doria, a sunken ocean liner that has eluded treasure hunters for 17 years.

In 1956, when the Italian luxury liner and a Swedish ship collided in heavy fog 45 miles off Nantucket Island, the Doria was considered a virtual floating art gallery. Cash, negotiable bonds, art treasures and jewelry worth an estimated $4 million reportedly are on the sunken liner.

The divers say the art, money and jewelry are still there.

employe pay raises, unemployment compensation, and revisions in workmen's compensation laws, among others.

Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, R-19 Ashland, cast the only dissenting vote as the Senate gave its approval to the constitutional resolution to pay bonuses of up to $500 to Vietnam and other veterans dating back to February 1961. From 450,000 to 500,000 would be eligible, under varying estimates.

The freshman senator noted that only about 150,000 of those eligible "actually went to Vietnam," and said he could have supported a resolution limited to them. The others, he said, had pay and fringe benefits "comparable to persons in private industry and had "nothing like the hardships the Vietnam veterans had."

If approved by voters in November, the state would begin to receive applications for the bonus after Jan. 1, 1974. Veterans, who could receive double their cash bonuses in education-

Everybody aboard slid down the emergency chute after the plane came to a stop at Benghazi, on the Mediterranean coast.

Members of the crew said no one was hurt during the evacuation, but blood was spurting from a cut above the eye of one old Japanese woman and her glasses were smashed.

All the hostages looked worn out by their 3½-day ordeal, and some appeared on the verge of collapse.

Constitutional confrontation at hand

Probers, Cox subpoena tape

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon battled today in a legal no-man's-land to withhold Watergate evidence he frankly admits can't prove his innocence.

He refused Monday to produce the sought-after Watergate-related tape recordings and documents voluntarily, and promptly was served with subpoenas from the Senate Watergate committee and special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

The next step in the unfolding constitutional confrontation was scheduled for today, when Cox has promised to make public the wording of his subpoena by filing it in court.

Nixon has until Thursday to respond to the subpoenas, which he appeared determined not to honor. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the President has taken "a very firm position" against release of the material, either publicly or to a grand jury.

Nixon might ignore the subpoenas, risking moves that could find him in contempt of Congress or the courts. Or he might fight them directly with legal motions asking a judge to quash them. Either way, the fight appears destined for ultimate resolution in the Supreme Court, which has never ruled clearly on whether a President may withhold evidence in a criminal case.

Asked what legal course Nixon might take, Warren responded, "The White House counsel will examine the subpoenas. Whatever is done will be in the context of the letters issued today."

In the letters the White House refused to give the material either to the committee or to Cox, who are seeking it for different purposes.

Nixon wrote a personal letter to committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. Consulting White House lawyer Charles Alan Wright wrote Cox.

Both letters said the constitutional separation of powers would be violated unless the tapes and documents were kept secret.

Nixon said he has listened to some of the tapes, and stated that they would not settle whether ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III was telling the truth when he accused Nixon of participating in the Watergate cover-up plot. Dean said Nixon discussed hush money and clemency offers in the Oval Office.

"The tapes are entirely consistent with what I know to be the truth and what I have stated to be the truth," Nixon said. "However, as in any verbatim recording of informal conversations, they contain comments that persons with different perspectives would inevitably interpret in different ways."

Ervin, in announcing that the committee would subpoena the tapes, said he found Nixon's letter "rather remarkable."

"If you'll notice, he said he's heard the tapes, and they sustain his position. But he says he's not going to let anyone have them for fear they might draw a different conclusion," Ervin said.

"In other words, the President says they are susceptible of two different interpretations."

Ervin scoffed at Nixon's claim that the separation of powers doctrine gives him power to withhold the material. "I am certain that the doctrine of separation of powers does not impose upon any president either the duty or the power to undertake to separate a congressional committee from access to the truth," he said.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the vice chairman of the committee, said he would withhold any personal criticism or judgments until the

Ehrlichman says John Dean lied

WASHINGTON (AP) — John D. Ehrlichman today told the Senate Watergate committee that John W. Dean III lied.

Ehrlichman, once the chief domestic adviser to President Nixon, said he and others in the White House relied on Dean for information about the Watergate wiretapping affair.

Ehrlichman said in prepared testimony ousted White House counsel Dean's story that the Watergate affair was the center of attention at the White House is "falsely than all the other falsehoods" Dean gave the Senate panel.

"I do not suggest that we were all just too busy to have noticed," Ehrlichman said. "We did notice, and we kept informed through John Dean on the assumption that he was giving us complete and accurate information."

For his own part, Ehrlichman said, "I sincerely do not believe I am guilty of any wrongdoing."

In a 30-page statement prepared for his appearance as a witness before the committee, Ehrlichman defended the Nixon administration against Dean. He accused Dean of a "gallery-pleasing repetition of the old story about fear and paranoia in the White House."

Ehrlichman's opening statement contained no response to the specific allegations against him. Dean says Ehrlichman ordered him to destroy material from wiretapper E. Howard Hunt's White House safe shortly after the Watergate break-in, and said Ehrlichman authorized use of hush money to buy silence from the original Watergate defendants, among other things.

Ehrlichman insisted that Dean rarely informed him about Watergate despite Dean's testimony that the cover-up was a major concern of Ehrlichman and staff chief H. R. Haldeman. Ehrlichman said his log shows 22 meetings with Dean, eight of them on non-Watergate subjects. "Of the remainder," he said, "not all were devoted to talk about aspects of Watergate."

Ehrlichman complained that his name constantly was hyphenated with that of Haldeman as if they were Siamese twins.

"Mr. Haldeman and I had vastly different duties, areas and methods of operation," Ehrlichman said. "I had very little knowledge of what he was doing day by day."

Lured by an eight-dash harness horse racing card, the activity-crowded midway and hot, clear weather, 2,800 paying customers attended the Fayette County Fair Monday, nearly double the figure for Monday a year ago.

There was some livestock judging, and all animals were in their barns by Monday evening. A garden tractor pull and the first of three 4-H fashion reviews also helped to swell the crowd.

Monday's paid gate was by far the best Monday in recent years. A hard rain last year limited the Monday crowd to 1,406 as the harness races were cancelled.

There was no rain Monday, however, and the racetrack was in good shape

Three bills dealing with public employees' rights and benefits cleared the House Monday without significant opposition. The House passed and sent to the Senate a measure assuring state employees working more than 40 hours in one week of the right to choose between cash or compensating time, both on time-and-a-half basis.

Representatives added their approval to Senate bills extending permanent civil service status to employees in their jobs two years or longer without a competitive examination, and allowing public employees such as firemen to accumulate more than the present maximum of 120 days in sick leave.

In other business, the House passed and sent to the Senate bills to:

Benghazi airport was closed to civilian traffic after the blast.

While in Dubai, the hijackers identified themselves variously as Sons of the Occupied Territory, Mt. Carmel Martyr Sada and the Japanese Red Army but never made clear whether they were affiliated with any known Arab guerrilla group.

Nor were their demands ever made public. But there were unconfirmed reports that they demanded freedom for a Japanese terrorist serving a life term in Israel for the Tel Aviv airport massacre and that they also were seeking $5 million ransom.

BENGHAZI, Libya (AP) — The hijackers of a Japanese jumbo jetliner blew up the Boeing 747 today at the Benghazi airport a few minutes after they and their 137 hostages slid down an emergency chute. The hijackers were arrested.

Passengers and crew members who had been held hostage since Friday had run about a quarter of a mile from the plane when explosive charges set by the four hijackers went off in the cockpit.

Libyan troops armed with sub-machine guns arrested the four hijackers.

Mrs. Margaret Bapst

BEAVER — Services for Mrs. Margaret Bapst, 88, Rt. 1, will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Hammerstein Funeral Home with the Rev. Waid C. Radford and Rev. Samuel Stover officiating. Burial will follow in Beaver Union Cemetery.

Mrs. Bapst, the widow of Phillip Bapst Sr., died at 5 a.m. Monday at her home. She was a member of the Beaver Union Methodist Church.

Surviving are eight sons, Dearn, 903 Millwood Ave., Washington C. H., George and Wilson of Jackson, Foster, William W., Ronald, Johnnie and Phillip, all of Beaver; and five daughters, Mrs. Wilma Walters, Washington C. H., Mrs. Leona Camink, Mrs. Milicent Kennison and Mrs. Mildred Pidgeon, all of Beaver, and Mrs. Linnie Curtis of Jackson; 32 grandchildren and 24 great-grandchildren.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Impoundment declared unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's impoundment of funds, declared unconstitutional in connection with a housing program by a federal court, faced a new test today in Congress.

The House has scheduled debate on a bill that would give Congress the power to override any presidential impoundment by a simple resolution passed by either chamber.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles R. Richey on Monday ruled that Nixon acted illegally in January by freezing funds for federal subsidized housing. The order said Nixon overstepped his executive powers in a matter ordained by Congress.

It was the latest in a series of court rulings denying the constitutionality of Nixon's withholding of funds approved by Congress.

Depending on the source, estimates of the amount Nixon has impounded ranged from $8.7 billion to $18 billion.

The bill before the House would allow either house of Congress to void a presidential impoundment by passing a resolution within 60 days of the action.

It faces a probable veto if enacted, but the House Democratic Steering Committee is pushing for favorable votes.

The Senate already has passed its own version of anti-impoundment legislation, a bill authored by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. that would automatically terminate an impoundment unless both chambers agreed to it within 60 days.

Richey's order voids the Nixon administration's 18-month moratorium on federal subsidies for low-cost housing — a freeze that provoked cries from builders who claimed it would cost the economy more than $10 billion.

Within minutes, ashes and charred metal was all that remained of the $25-million aircraft.

The airline said a special rescue flight was being readied at Dubai to go to Benghazi to pick up the stranded passengers and crew as soon as Libyan authorities gave clearance for it to land.

Libyan officials were not immediately available to say what would happen to the hijackers. But it was assumed they would be allowed to go wherever they want, the way previous Arab terrorists who wound up in Libya have been treated.

The major Palestinian guerrilla groups all disclaimed any part in the hijacking. Their executive committee scheduled an emergency meeting in Beirut today to formulate a statement on the matter.

The Beirut newspaper Al Moharrer, which has close contacts with the guerrilla groups, said guerrilla sources called the hijackers "soldiers of fortune exploiting the Palestinian revolution and its prestige to carry out an operation which is far from the morality of the revolution."

committee writes its report. But he said he personally regrets that Nixon has forced the issue.

"I have tried as hard as I know how to find a way around this," he said. "I am unhappy that it is necessary for us to come to the brink of a constitutional confrontation."

The papers served on Nixon by the prosecutor and the committee are different in what they seek, the authority on which they are based, and the ends to which the subpoenaed material is to be put.

As a result, the fights over them might well take divergent courses in the courts.

The Senate committee seeks the tapes to settle publicly whether Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up. Cox wants the tapes to use as possible evidence in secret grand jury proceedings.

The Senate committee issued its two subpoenas on the authority given to it by the Senate itself. Cox, with special independent status within the executive branch, required the signature of a deputy clerk to make his subpoena official.

With events in such rapid motion, few would comment on likely future moves by today that Nixon has decided to ignore the subpoenas. But this could not be confirmed.

Eddie Rickenbacker rites slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Services for Eddie Rickenbacker—the World War I hero and auto racing pioneer born in Columbus 82 years ago—will be held later this week.

Rickenbacker died Monday in Zurich, Switzerland. His body was to be flown back here for burial.

WCH resident recalls meeting famous flyer

Willard R. Everhart, 95, of 809 Washington Ave., relates his contact with the late Eddie Rickenbacker in 1911.

The World War I flying ace was then in his early 20s, working for the Firestone-Columbus Co. which had just entered the automobile industry.

When Mr. Everhart, accompanied by his mother and father-in-law, took a train to Columbus to consider purchasing a car from the company, Rickenbacker met them, at the depot. After taking them to dinner, at which "he spared no expense," Rickenbacker gave them a tour of the manufacturing plant.

Impressed in part by the young man's hospitality, Mr. Everhart returned to Washington C.H. in his new automobile, one of the first of its kind in Fayette County.

Three years later, Rickenbacker was to gain national attention by pushing race cars to unheard of speeds at Daytona Beach.

New train

route urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A passenger train line linking Cleveland, Toledo, Akron, Canton, Columbus, Cincinnati and Dayton has been proposed by U.S. Sen. Robert Taft, R-Ohio.

Taft suggested the line be tied into one that should run between Chicago and Detroit through Toledo in an effort to reduce air and road traffic between Ohio cities.

The lines would be operated by Amtrak, the national rail passenger service.

"It seems clear that continued Amtrak losses, especially on long hauls, mean that Amtrak should be directing its attention toward population corridors and shorter day-time hauls," Taft said.

The metropolitan areas of the seven Ohio cities contain about seven million people.

J. Phillip Richey, director of the state Department of Transportation, said he liked the idea, but did not think it would work.

He said the railroad's World War II vintage cars and track probably wouldn't lure enough auto drivers to make it a success.

Amtrak has announced plans to cut the New York to Kansas City, Mo., train which runs through Columbus and Dayton.

Jobless bill

accord eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A compromise bill granting higher jobless benefits to organized labor is expected to be announced today.

The agreed version reportedly provides payments higher than those approved by the Senate, but keeps in force a law prohibiting benefits to employees of a strike-bound firm.

Under present law, maximum payments for a worker with two dependents are $73 a week. Last month, the Senate approved $79. The compromise reportedly is $100.

Spring Valley youth dies of electrocution

WAYNESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — A 16-year-old Spring Valley youth has been electrocuted in an industrial mishap.

Warren County authorities said Michael Ross died Monday in the accident at the Sullivan Potato Supply Co. north of Waynesville.

Sen. Robert A. Taft Jr., R-Ohio, knew the former board chairman, director and general manager of Eastern Airlines personally.

"His courage and ingenuity both as an aviation pioneer and business leader, during times of peace and war are hallmarks of excellence by any standards," Taft said.

"All Ohioans can take pride in the fact that he was our own. Now, he belongs to history along with other Ohioans and Americans who have made this country great," he said.

Ohioans raised his youthful name above others by naming him to the Ohio Teen Age Hall of Fame when he was 19 for his accomplishments as a pilot and driver.

Years later, he joined the Wright brothers, William Boeing and Alexander Graham Bell in Ohio's Aviation Hall of Fame.

"He was a true pioneer who took man's dream to fly and helped make it into a reality for millions of persons all over the world," Gov. John J. Gilligan said.

Gen. Jack J. Catton, commander of the Air Force Logistics Command at Wright Patterson Air Force Base at Dayton, said, "His death has special significance here in Ohio. Many of his achievements are enshrined in the Air Force museum in Dayton. Aviation and the country have lost a true friend."

"For a man who risked his life as many times as he did, you'd think that he was invincible," said James Doherty, an Air Force reservist at Lockbourne Air Force Base. "And then he's gone."

Born in Columbus, Oct. 8, 1890, Rickenbacker was one of eight children of Swiss-born parents. Eddie was 12 when his father died.

He quit school—his only other formal education was an International Correspondence School course in mechanical engineering—and went to work at $3.50 a week at the one-time Columbus Gas Co.

He worked 12 hours each night.

A succession of jobs followed—in a foundry, as a monument polisher, brewery employe and railroad worker.

Then in 1905, he went to work for the Columbus Buggy Co. That started him on a career leading to big-time automobile racing and making him an internationally-known driver.

In World War I, he transferred his talents to aviation where he was an ace pilot.

Ever since, he had been a national figure.

—Abolish a statutory but inoperative board of alcoholism in the State Health Department.

—Revise sick leave accumulations for state employes.

—Qualify Ohio for federal boating safety aid.

—Exempt the for Ohio Fair Plan Underwriting Association from certain fees and taxes.

The Senate, in other action, approved 28-3 and sent to the House a bill rescinding the authority of juvenile courts to commit 16 and 17-year-olds to adult correctional institutions.

Senators passed House bills removing the limit on township cemetery levies, requiring all school districts to provide kindergarten by Sept. 30, 1975, clarifying standards for use of safety glazing materials, and allowing prison inmates completing requirements to receive a high school diploma from his home town high school.

See tight credit, higher interest

WASHINGTON (AP)— A member of the Federal Reserve Board says Americans will pay more for home mortgages and find it tougher to get other credit because of the battle against inflation.

And, rising food prices are prompting some Americans to stock up as a hedge against even higher costs.

Reserve Board member Andrew F. Brimmer said Monday the agency plans to keep a tight money policy "as long as required."

"I know that the picture ... is far from comforting. These consequences are inherent in the use of a restrictive monetary policy as a leading instrument in the fight against inflation," Brimmer told a meeting of the Michigan Savings and Loan League at Mackinac Island, Mich.

The board's monetary actions have included raising bank reserve requirements, and raising the discount rate on money borrowed from federal reserve banks by commercial banks to 7 per cent, the highest rate since the 1920s, he said.

As a result of these actions and high demand for loans, the bank prime interest rate on loans has steadily increased this year to 8½ per cent.

The effect on consumers, Brimmer said, is higher interest rates, including on home mortgages, and a shortage of credit. He indicated that interest rates will keep rising for at least the immediate future.

While recent economic indicators suggest the pace of economic activity is slowing, credit demands appear likely to remain quite heavy for some time, Brimmer said.

Meanwhile, an Associated Press survey of supermarkets shows customers are stocking up on food in the face of sharply rising prices. Many stores have taken advantage of the lifting of the price freeze to mark up many food items, particularly pork, poultry and eggs, the survey showed.

The Phase 4 program announced last week allows food processors and retailers to pass on to the consumer cost increases in raw agricultural products. Beef prices remain frozen until Sept. 12.

Administration officials have said there will be a sharp rise in food prices temporarily, but they predicted that the grocery bills will level off as supplies increase.

In another development, the Agriculture Department indicated Monday that vegetables will be more expensive this summer, though supplies will be larger than last year.

And the Cost of Living Council said it has granted an exemption from the price freeze for the fall line of clothing.

The council said "drastic market disruption" of the production and distribution of textile products would have resulted if the exemption had not been granted to six trade associations.

A high pressure area centered over the Eastern states, that brought fair weather to Ohio overnight was moving slowly east and southeast out of the state today.

As the high leaves Ohio, a warm front will move northward across the state, accompanied by showers and thunder-showers. The front is expected to pass north of Lake Erie by Wednesday morning.

Warm, humid conditions will prevail over Ohio for the next few days, along with showers and thundershowers. Highs will range from the mid 80s to low 90s. Overnight lows will be around 70.

Fair weather dominated Ohio overnight, although showers and thundershowers threatened the western edge of the state at daybreak. Showers and thundershowers were falling at dawn in Indiana and Kentucky.

No rain was reported over the Buckeye State between early Monday afternoon and daybreak today.

Warm with daily showers or thundershowers Thursday through Saturday. Highs 80 to 85 north and in the mid to upper 80s south. Lows from the mid 60s to low 70s.

Storms rake midcontinent

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms cracked across much of the midcontinent today after spawning tornadoes and cloudburst rains in scattered areas from the northern Plains to the middle Mississippi Valley.

The pilot of an Ozark Air Lines turbojet which crashed near St. Louis' Lambert Field in a blinding thunderstorm Monday night said his plane was hit at least once by lightning and may have flown through a tornado. At least 36 persons died in the crash.

South Dakota's capital city of Pierre was hit by a twister that injured 10 persons slightly late Monday and caused damage in a two-block-wide area seven to nine blocks long.

Four tornadoes touched down near Waseca, in southern Minnesota, uprooting trees and downing power lines and buildings. No personal injuries were reported.

Heavy rains swamped Uniontown, Ky., Monday evening. More than 4½ inches hit the Ohio River town 30 miles southwest of Evansville, Ind. Flash flood warnings were issued for the area today.

Rockford, Ill., was drenched by 1.71 inches of rain in one hour just before midnight. Winds hit 54 miles per hour.

In Chicago, heavy rains swept through after midnight, causing some flooding and breaking power lines.

Fair to partly cloudy skies prevailed over most regions outside the mid-continent.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 44 at Arcata, Calif., to 90 at Phoenix, Ariz., and Needles, Calif.

Officer slays woman, self

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A Dayton patrolman and a woman employe of the Dayton Police were killed early today in what police say was an apparent murder-suicide.

A spokesman for the department said Patrolman Ralph P. Cellars, 39, apparently walked into the records section of the Safety Building shortly after 7 a.m. and shot and killed Jacquelyn Ebert, 34, a data processing employe.

Police said Cellars then turned the gun on himself.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices dipped today after a six-day rally, and analysts generally attributed it to the latest Watergate developments as well as higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was down 4.59 at 908.56 as declining issues on the Big Board held a 2-to-1 lead over advances in relatively light trading. The blue-chip indicator had closed Monday up over 2.

Skylab crew practices fix-it tasks; launch set Saturday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After they saved their damaged space station, the Skylab 1 astronauts were called the "fix anything guys." More repair work may await the Skylab 2 crew when it reaches the orbiting lab.

Practicing one of the potential fix-it tasks was the main training item planned today as Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma neared Saturday's launch date for their marathon 59-day mission.

They scheduled a lengthy session with an electronic package called a "gyro six-pack." It might have to be used to replace some troublesome rate gyroscope processors (RGPs) on the space station.

Skylab uses nine RGPs, three in each axis—roll, pitch and yaw. They sense motion and provide that information to a computer which furnishes signals to control the position of the 85-ton space station. The three RGPs in each axis are redundant; only one is essential for performance.

One RGP has been turned off because it malfunctioned, and five others have become overheated to various degrees but still are operative as the lab orbits 270 miles high.

Bean, Garriott and Lousma are carrying the six-pack along in case they need replacements, a job that would require a two-man space walk.

High prices seen for soybeans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soybean prices at the farm during the crop year beginning Sept. 1 could average about $4.11 per bushel if projected production and export orders are realized, an Agriculture Department economist says. The estimate was made by Jimmy L.

Matthews of the Economic Research Service in the July issue of the agency's "Fats and Oils Situation" production.

For the 1972-73 season, soybean growers are expected to receive a record $4.25 per bushel, compared with $3.03 in 1971-72. Matthews said. The previous high of $3.33 was in 1947-48, he said.

Matthews uses several economic models to show various price possibilities for the 1973 soybean crop. They ranged from a farm price average of $3 per bushel to a high of $4.50 depending on the supply and demand situation.

Matthews also speculated that 1973-74 soybean prices could average "at least as high" as the expected $4.25 for 1972-73.

Matthews uses a crop production of 1.588 billion bushels in projecting a farm price average of $4.11 per bushel in the coming crop year. The crop forecast was based on the department's July 1 reports on acreage and trends in the industry.

The first official USDA estimate of 1973 soybean production, based on field inspections, will be announced Aug. 9.

Matthews contends that the farm price could average $4.50 per bushel if the Soviet Union buys 2.5 million metric tons (about 92 million bushels) from a short 1973 crop of 1.462 billion bushels, and the fishmeal supply from Peru remains scant.

"An additional 10 per cent depreciation of the dollar on top of these factors could push soybean farm prices to near the $5 per bushel level," Matthews adds.

However, Matthews warns that relatively low soybean prices at the farm, about $3 per bushel, could result next season if a bumper crop is produced next fall. Russia does not buy any beans, Brazil boosts soybean exports sharply and Peruvian fishmeal makes a comeback.

Traffic Court

Extend injunction in service case

HEATH, Ohio (AP) — Licking County Common Pleas Judge Walter Bolton has extended for two weeks his July 9 injunction blocking the Forest Hills Utility Co. from cutting off water and sewer services to the Forest Hills subdivision.

The injunction stems from a rate dispute between the company and the Forest Hills Lot Owners Association that began five years ago. The injunction will be in force until Aug. 6.

Judge Bolton also granted a counter motion by the company asking for a hearing on its request to dissolve the earlier injunction. He will hear arguments on that request Friday.

Arrests

POLICE

TUESDAY — Larry A. Potts, 18, New Carlisle, disturbing the peace by intoxication.

A 17-year-old Washington C.H. youth for delinquency by drinking an alcoholic beverage.

SHERIFF

MONDAY — Connie K. Beane, 22, Rt. 1, Bloomingburg, bench warrant for failure to appear in court (Madison County warrant).

PATIENT COOKS — Members of Boy Scout Troop 229 roast beef on a spit over an open fire to demonstrate outdoor cooking at the Fayette County Fair. Members of the troop are cooking meat each evening of the Fair between 5 and 9 p.m. The meat is served after cooking. The Scouts plan to roast 40 pounds of meat Friday. Their scoutmaster is James Knisley.

Robert Young likes secluded living

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif. (AP) — Robert Young, television's Dr. Marcus Welby, prefers the country life to fighting crowds and traffic in Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

"We think of it more and more as our regular home and the Beverly Hills house as our second home," Young said of his home here.

"I have to go to the post office, and I meet people there. We stand around and chat about the state of the world. I prefer it to Beverly Hills or Hollywood. They're too dense and have too much traffic for me."

Hirsute physiognomy

Hairy faces — that's what we see now in abundance and variety on Washington C. H. streets.

Only yesterday, as the time crowd flies, people tended to look askance at a man with long sideburns; moustaches were thought a bit precious; whiskers were suspect. Except, of course, on an occasional aged academic: everyone knew professors were eccentric, and tolerably forgave them such departures from the norm.

Then it came the young rebels, dissenters, hippies, Establishment foes — call them what you like. They began to sport long hair and beards, mainly as an apparent gesture of defiance.

The practice caught on, but there was a difference. Men both young and middle-aged, and a few pushing senior citizen status as well, began sprouting hirsute adornment. Not necessarily in defiance of the established order, though; the difference was that this kind of facial decoration began to seem like fun, an expression of individual taste.

Malcolm Cowley remembers

The story goes that when the great Finnish composer Jan Sibelius was informed that the critics had savaged his latest work, he laughed heartily and asked, "Has anyone ever seen a statue of a critic?"

The point was well taken. Most criticism, whether musical, artistic or literary, vanished into the morgue, perhaps to be resurrected by an eager scholar who is, as it were, building a statue of some creative figure.

In our time, for example, few American writers have been subjected to the abuse that Ralph Ellison has taken for persistently rejecting the stereotype of the "black writer." But one can be confident that Ellison's "Invisible Man" will remain one of the great works of 20th Century American fiction.

However, there is one American critic whom I would exempt from this generalization. Maybe because he is also a distinguished poet, rather than a full-time kibitzer, Malcolm Cowley has always impressed me as a man of singular perception.

MORE THAN 30 years ago I "discovered" Cowley in the pages of a weekly magazine and, on his advice, began to read William Faulkner — then a neglected figure in American letters. From there he led me to Scott Fitzgerald and others of the "lost generation."

When his "Exile's Return" appeared in 1951, I devoured it in one sitting, and found it invaluable in my own writing — from a different perspective — on the 1920s. Although we have never met or corresponded, I feel a deep indebtedness to him for the doors he opened, the corners he illuminated.

Most of his friends and contemporaries — Thomas Wolfe, Ernest Hemingway, Scott Fitzgerald, John Dos Passos, to mention only a few — are gone, but fortunately Cowley is still among us and at his desk. Viking has just issued his coda on the "lost generation" — "A Second Flowering" — and it is a poignant, moving book.

(If we did not live in the time of the corruption of the word, I would say "brilliant," but ever since some luminary used that word to describe "Portnoy's Complaint," I have dropped it from my vocabulary.)

"A Second Flowering" consists of a series of vignettes of nine of Cowley's friends and acquaintances, but it is far more than simple a collection of mini-biographies. In effect, he employs his cast of characters to limn an era in American life.

I was, for example, suddenly struck by the difference between his generation — roughly born with the century — and mine: the post-World War I crop. He points out that, properly speaking, they were never "lost," they had a solidarity and a sense of common experience. I would put it a little differently; they had to be "found" before they could get lost, they had to have illusions before they could become disillusioned.

So here we are in an era when all sorts of men — baseball players, garbage collectors, store clerks, mailmen, shopkeepers, doctors and lawyers, teachers, even more than a few business executives — treat themselves to beards, moustaches and sideburns in marvellous array. There hasn't been anything like it for several generations.

We like to think of it as reflecting the growth of individuality and independence of spirit. Whether or not that is the case, it makes the male physiognomy a lot more interesting than it used to be.

FOR YEARS I have been trying to make sense out of my generation, and as I read Cowley I realized that, to oversimplify, we were the faceless ones. We were never found, so we couldn't get lost; we grew up without illusions and simply walked into the grinder: the Depression and then the War.

To Cowley and his friends, World War I was a great adventure; to us World War II was mechanized boredom tempered by occasional danger.

After three, four or five years who wanted to go home, rush to the American Legion clubhouse, and talk about the glorious old days on Biak or in Sicily or Normandy? We merely vanished into society doggedly, determined to prevent our children from repeating our joyless history.

What Cowley beautifully conveys is the ebullience of his associates, the zest with which they took the world to be their oyster. Curiously I am struck by their essential innocence, which reminds me of one of the most engaging qualities of my daughter and her peers. Frankly, I am envious: why did my generation get dealt a busted flush?

Finally, the sole survivor is in the position to mop up — he has outlived his enemies. Cowley, in contrast, has dealt gently with some rather ungente types. His is a compassionate farewell to his comrades.

Wanted: a second Alaskan pipeline

So, after all these months, we are going to get the cross-Alaska oil pipeline.

But there is no rest for the weary: now that the estimated ten-billion-barrel supply of crude oil that is waiting for exploitation under the North Slope field is to be made available, we are faced with the imminent necessity of planning for a second pipeline. This will be needed for the natural gas that will come to the surface along with the oil.

The gas industry is reasonably certain that Alaska's proved and potential gas — not gasoline — supply adds up to some 400 trillion cubic feet, which is sufficient to take care of all U.S. needs for 18 years at the present rate of production.

There are 150 million hungry potential gas consumers waiting for their share of the cleanest and most efficient fuel imaginable. Naturally, the Alaskan oil has to be moved first: gas is a by-product of oil pumping.

It would be stupid — nay, tragic — to waste the gas, either by flaring it off or by returning it to underground storage for problematic use in a never-never future.

MOVING THE GAS to the "south 48" states will involve some close thinking about pipeline routes. If a gas pipe were to be constructed parallel to the oil pipe that will be carrying the liquid crude from the North Slope to the warm water Pacific port of Valdez, the gas would have to be compressed for transshipment by sea to Seattle or San Francisco or to the U.S. East Coast.

This would be a most expensive proposition; it would be less costly to bring liquefied natural gas direct by sea to the U.S. from Algeria.

The best route for a gas pipeline would be through the Mackenzie delta of Canada; as it moved southward it could pick up gas from many contributory Canadian sources. The Canadians could skim off all they need for their own industrial uses.

If a natural gas pipeline were routed through Canada, it should do something to mollify Sen. Mondale of Minnesota and Bayh of Indiana, who are angry because the Alaskan oil won't be moving directly overland to Midwest markets. Natural gas is a substitute for oil both for home and industrial or public utility use.

With the Alaskan natural gas supply available to Midwest housewives and industrialists, a much bigger fraction of the oil and gasoline that comes from Kansas and Oklahoma sources could be segregated for automobiles and farm tractors.

When you come right down to it, the paucity of available natural gas is at the bottom of our energy crisis. When the clean air laws in various states prohibited the burning of high sulfur coal to make electricity, our public utility tycoons turned to natural gas because its price, as dictated by the federal government, was pleasingly low.

But the gas industry, selling at the controlled price, couldn't generate the funds necessary to discovering and exploiting new fields. As the old fields ran out, the utilities began burning more and more oil distillates; they even made big inroads on the supply of household oil. (Remember this when you are freezing next winter.)

The 1972 level of distillate use by electric utilities was double that of 1971, and almost triple that of 1970. Where the utilities had consumed only 8,000 barrels of distillate oil a day in 1967, they were burning 186,000 barrels daily in 1972. The latter figure is 80 per cent of the total distillate consumption of all the American railroads in 1971, or 40 per cent of the daily diesel fuel used in the trucking industry, or 125 per cent of the diesel requirements of U.S. farm machinery.

WITH THE FARM figure in mind, it is easy to grasp the indirect importance of Alaskan natural gas to Minnesota and Iowa farmers. It should be crusade enough for Sen. Mondale to persuade the Canadian government to help with the construction of a natural gas pipeline from the Alaskan tundra all the way to Winnipeg, Minneapolis and Chicago.

As a matter of fact, a third and perhaps even a fourth pipeline will have to be constructed in the still distant future to carry crude oil south from Alaska to the U.S. Some of our major oil companies are convinced by exploratory drilling that there is a big offshore oilfield in the Arctic Ocean running parallel to the onshore North Slope field.

If and when this offshore oil becomes available, the North Slope-Valdez pipeline would be too overloaded to carry it. If the third and fourth pipelines were to go through Canada, everybody would be satisfied and Sen. Mondale could run for President on the accomplishment.

Hal Boyle . . . Single women under attack

By BAYO ROTIBI
Associated Press Writer
LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — A "jihad" — Moslem holy war — being waged by emirs in Nigeria's Islamic north against prostitution has stripped many cities of their spinsters.

Single women started fleeing the north a few weeks ago in the wake of orders by the angry religious leaders demanding they get married or face dire consequences.

The emirs claim the severe West African drought that has hit Nigeria's arid north is due to the immorality of single women.

In Minna, in Nigeria's Northwestern State, unmarried women were given a week to find husbands.

Wives who had deserted their matrimonial homes were ordered to return to their husbands immediately or face expulsion from the town.

Many women fled rather than shop for husbands in the short time allowed. Others preferred remaining single, claiming the young men available for marriage were not ready to shoulder responsibilities.

The emirs say prostitution, which they claim has become widespread in the strongly Moslem north, not only violates Moslem law but "disorganizes married homes and mars the fortunes of young men."

One man in Minna disagreed, arguing prostitutes contribute to the "social happiness of the town," one local newspaper reported.

In the university town of Zaria, the emir, Alhaji Mohammad Aminu, summoned single women to his palace and lectured them on Islamic morality.

Single women are to blame for the drought, he charged. The drought was "Allah's punishment," he said, "for adultery and fornication."

Prostitution has spread somewhat in Nigeria since the end of the 30-month civil war with Biafra that left many homes without "bread winners," the victims of bullets or starvation. Soaring inflation has also increased the need to seek additional income.

Seeking legal protection, about a dozen crusading prostitutes recently formed a national union in Lagos and asked the government for official recognition.

They hired a lawyer, opened a secretariat and called a news conference to claim their "fundamental" rights.

Police raided the place in the seedy Lagos outskirts of Ikorodu Road, closed the one-room office and rounded up a number of prostitutes for "living on immoral earnings."

Dear Abby:

Marriage has little chance of success

DEAR ABBY: My problem is driving me up a wall. I met a most charming lady about six months ago. We are both middle aged. I'm divorced and so is she. Three times. It was love at first sight for both of us and we were headed straight for matrimony when I discovered we had a few differences. I'll name some.

She wants to live way up North. I prefer the South. She's a real swinger and likes to be on the go all the time. If she had her way she'd eat breakfast, lunch, and dinner out, and make the rounds of the bars every night. I don't care to go that much.

She loves people and never met a stranger. It takes me a while to warm up to people. Her overly friendly ways, plus her D cup, which she flaunts a lot, has led her into a lot of trouble. She does have the gift of forgiving and forgetting, which I do not have.

When I pointed out our differences, she offered to fix me up with some of her girl friends, which I didn't go for.

She says she loves me and wants to marry me, but I would have to change my ways. I don't think I could.

There is such a strong physical attraction between us, I can't give her up. What do you think the chances of a successful marriage are between us?

TORN UP IN PALM SPRINGS
DEAR TORN: Like a snowball in Palm Springs. In August.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 12-year-old girl with the same problem most girls my age have. Parents who think I'm still a baby liking boys who don't even notice me and not doing as well in school as I should be doing, but now I have a really big one.

I was looking for a blouse I had worn only once and threw it in the dirty clothes hamper when I came across a whisky bottle in the bottom of the clothes hamper.

Now I know why my mother has been taking a nap lately when I'd come home from school. And why she seemed so peppy sometimes and so low and unhappy at other times.

Both Mom and Dad have a drink before dinner. Maybe two, but neither one of them ever had a drinking problem that I knew about. Should I tell Dad? Or should I tell Mom I found the bottle? Or should I just keep my mouth shut?

WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR WORRIED: Tell your Mom you found the bottle and are worried about her. Tell her, too, that even though parents don't usually take advice from their children, you wish she would call Alcoholics Anonymous. Anyone who "hides" whisky has a drinking problem. (P.S. There is a group called ALATEEN for teenagers of parents with that problem. A.A. is listed in your phone book. Call and inquire.)

DEAR ABBY: I married a young well-to-do widower. (No children.) I saved myself for marriage, which wasn't easy for a good-looking, popular, 28-year-old woman.

Everybody thought I was the luckiest girl in the world to start out married life with a completely furnished home. I am not complaining because I think I'm lucky, too, but after three or four months I felt uncomfortable sleeping in the same bed John and his first wife had slept in for six years.

I asked John if we could get a new bed. He said no, it would be a needless expense. (He can well afford it, and he isn't tight.) Then I got to thinking about the memories and associations John had in that bed with his first wife, and it bothered me, so I asked him again. Again he said no.

Last week, without John's knowledge, I made a deal with a furniture store to pick up our bedroom set, and trade it in on a new one. I used my own money to pay the difference.

When John found out what I had done he was furious. He didn't speak to me for three days and even threatened to send me back to my mother. He's still sulking a little.

Can YOU understand my feelings, Abby? How can I make John understand them? Or am I out of line?

SECOND WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes, I can understand your feelings, and you are not out of line. You can make John understand by telling him exactly how you feel—and why.

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, July 24, the 205th day of 1973. There are 160 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1946, the United States made the first underwater test of an atomic bomb, exploding the device off Bikini Atoll in the Pacific.

On this date:

In 1704, the British captured Gibraltar during the war of the Spanish succession.

In 1783, the Latin American patriot, Simon Bolivar, was born in Caracas, Venezuela.

In 1870, the first railroad car from the Pacific Coast reached New York City. In 1929, President Herbert Hoover proclaimed the Kellogg-Briand pact, which renounced war as an instrument of national policy.

In 1942, in World War II, British bombers devastated the German cities of Frankfurt and Mannheim.

Ten years ago, the Cuban government expropriated the U.S. Embassy building and grounds in Havana.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

You may still be having useful ideas, but not the opportunity to apply them immediately. Be patient, and don't try to get ahead of yourself.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Fine influences! You should be able to hurdle almost any obstacle now, but continue to avoid emotionalism — also impulsiveness and extremism.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

Study propositions and the people behind them. Neither make agreements too quickly nor dally until you lose chances. Use that good judgment of yours.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

A day in which the Cancerian should shine! Now's the time to capitalize on your top-flight ideas; to add the novel twist that boots your project to the finish line.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Be prepared for competition, opposition to your plans. If aware that these exist, you can start the day with the premise that you CAN manage them — and you will!

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Tact and finesse should help you to attain ends you could not achieve by force. Be especially diplomatic in dealings with superiors.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Be tactful in family circles, all personal contacts. Recurrences of old hassles are possible if you are not on guard.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Don't force issues now. Like Gemini, the odds are against you and you'll gain more by waiting — and studying. But look ahead confidently. Avoid negative thinking.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

You may be tempted to take an unexpected fling in money matters and, if your judgment is as good as it usually is, it should pay off.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Do not be impulsive, but neither hold off action because of uncertainty over your abilities. Curb doubts and fears. You DO have ability: Back it with self-confidence.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Inspiration at a peak now. A unique idea you have can be carried off with just the right touch of ingenuity to make it work.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Keep your head and maintain the pace that's best for you. Don't let others distract you with ideas of doubtful worth — especially if they involve heavy spending.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with many qualities with which to win first-rate success: a strong individuality, a genius for leadership and usually fine gifts of organization and salesmanship. Do try to curb a tendency toward overaggressiveness, however, or you could make many enemies as you follow your road to the top.

Census data shows black gains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says black Americans have shown progress in some areas, notably education where twice as many attend college today than five years ago, but that they lag behind whites in most social and economic areas.

The report issued Sunday said that about 727,000 blacks enrolled in college in 1972, double that of 1967. The number of whites enrolled last year was 7.4 million.

The median family income for blacks in 1972 was $6,900, compared with $11,500 for whites — the same disparity as in 1967, the report said.

There also was evidence that the number of poor blacks increased last year, while that of poor whites decreased.

About 33 per cent of the black population, 7.7 million, were said to have been below the 1972 poverty level, compared with 9 per cent, 16.2 million, of the white population.

In addition, the jobless rate for blacks and other nonwhites was 10 per cent, the same as in 1971, compared with a drop from 5.4 to 5 per cent for whites, the report said.

Pointing to their progress in education, the report said that about 18 per cent of all blacks between 18 and 24 were in college, up from 13 per cent from 1967.

And there was a decline in the high school dropout rate for blacks between 14 and 24 — from 23.9 per cent to 17.8 over the five-year period. The 1972 white dropout rate was 10.7 per cent.

In addition, black high school graduates between 20 and 29 jumped sharply — from 52 per cent to 65 per cent over the same period, the report said.

Significant gains also were noted in the number of blacks holding elective office — 2,600 in 1972, twice the number as in 1968.

Also the proportion of nonwhites earning more than $10,000 increased from 22 per cent in 1966 to 30 per cent in 1971, the bureau reported.

The proportion of white families earning more than $10,000 was 54 per cent but blacks made income gains in some northern and western states, and in some categories exceeded that of whites. Young black families where the husband was under 35 and both husband and wife worked had a median income of $11,800, compared with $11,206 for white families in the same situation, the survey showed.

The black population in 1972 was 23.4 million, up 1.8 million since 1967. The survey was based on 1970 census data and information from governmental and private agencies, the bureau said.

ART DEMONSTRATION — Miss Helen Slavens, local artist, presented a talk and demonstration at the Washington Jr. High School cafeteria at the Senior Lunch Program, sponsored by the Community Action Commission. After painting the oil on the easel to demonstrate the ease with which simple pictures can be produced, she and one of her former students, Chapman Tillis, 84, display two paintings he has produced during the last two years.

Art demonstration given for Senior Citizens

Miss Helen Slavens, who works in the office of Craig's, demonstrated her avocation, painting, to the members of the Senior Lunch Program last Thursday. She told the group that no one is too old to begin enjoying the pleasure of creating their own drawings or paintings. She pointed out that Grandma Moses, a renown painter of American farm life, came into her own after her 80th birthday.

While speaking to the group, Miss Slavens produced an oil landscape which was quite impressive, demonstrating to the group how easily simple pictures can be painted.

She then introduced Chapman Tillis, 84, of 805 E. Temple St., whom she had had as a student at the Senior Citizens Center, where she taught for four years. Mr. Chapman showed two oil landscapes that he had painted during the past two years. Mrs. Slavens remarked that he had refinished the frames as well as painting the pictures they contained.

The Senior Lunch Program is sponsored by the Community Action Commission to offer elderly persons in the community proper nutrition and as well as recreational activities, and guest speakers are invited whenever possible.

The program, which began earlier this month, has a capacity of 50 persons, but thus far only 35 have enrolled. It is limited to persons over 60 years of age who qualify as physically handicapped, financially limited, socially isolated or who are patients at long term care facilities.

Throughout the state there are 28

Wedding plans are complete

Miss LaVonne Coulter, bride-elect of Pfc. Keith Linville, has completed plans for their open-church wedding at 7:30 p.m. July 28, in the South Side Church of Christ. Rev. Charles J. Richmond, pastor, will officiate for the double-ring ceremony.

A one-half hour of wedding selections will precede the ceremony, by Mrs. Charles Richmond, vocalist, and Mrs. Frank Creamer, organist.

Miss Coulter has asked her sister, Miss Rebecca J. Coulter, to be maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Daniel McLaughlin and Mrs. Keith Gibson, both of Cincinnati. Miss Leah Trout will be the flower girl.

Daniel McLaughlin will serve as best man. The groomsmen will be Keith Gibson and Paul Hasselbeck of Cincinnati. An additional usher will be Sp-4 Walter L. Grimmer of Fort Bragg, N.C.

Hostesses for the reception to be held in Fellowship Hall of the church following the marriage will be Mrs. Sam Trout, Mrs. John Trout and Mrs. Walter Smithson. Miss Joyce George and Miss Debbie Coulter will preside at the guest book.

Shower honors Miss Lanum

Miss Linda Lanum, bride-elect of Mark Lucas, was honor guest at a lingerie shower Saturday afternoon in the home of Mrs. Dennis Garringer. Assisting hostess was Miss Lynn Milstead.

Games were won by Mrs. Douglas White, Mrs. Joseph Lanum, and Mrs. Garringer, who in turn, presented them to the honor guest.

Miss Lanum opened many gifts from a table decorated in pink and white, with candles and a miniature bridal couple in the center. Punch, cake, mints and nuts, were served to the invited guests.

They were Mrs. Joseph Lanum Jr., and Mrs. William Lucas Jr., mothers of the betrothed couple, Mrs. Grace Lanum and Mrs. William Lucas Sr., grandmothers, Mrs. Don Dasher, Mrs.

White, Mrs. Tom Parsley, Mrs. Sam Hill, and the Misses Wanda Huff, Ginny Newman, Gwen Garringer, and Mrs. Roger Garringer.

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A 24-year-old Indiana man was sentenced to life imprisonment Monday in Warren County Common Pleas Court.

The man, Douglas Willis, was convicted Friday of second-degree murder in the death of Paul Cole, of Sharonville.

Willis is a native of Muncie.

Fayette County Fair was estimated by officials to be the second largest in Southwestern Ohio this year.

Sponsored by the Miami Trace High School Future Farmers of America, the pull attracted entries from several surrounding counties.

Martin Quigley, with first, second and third place finishes, and Mark Wheeler, with a first and a third, were the top trophy-takers.

Alfred Kendall judged the competition.

IT'S NOT EASY—THIS BUSINESS OF INVESTING!

Investing successfully is not easy!

Knowing when to buy and when to sell, how to diversify, how to pick the best industry or company — that is, really, an involved, often complicated, science or art.

There are some basic principles to bear in mind when investing:

Do not pay attention to irresponsible tips.

Just don't get into the stock market under the illusion that you can buy at the bottom and sell at the top.

Don't be stubborn about your own mistakes — you'll make them — and do not remain wrong for long.

Beware of fast-talking salesmen with highly speculative stocks.

Take your time, don't be rushed — deal only with established financial institutions, or through your local bank.

Snakes multiply despite moves at extermination

HOWE, Okla. (AP) — Mrs. Sim Phillips said she killed a snake behind her house here and left it for her husband to see when he returned home.

Her daughter, Mrs. Bobbie Mead, dropped by. So Mrs. Phillips took her out to see the snake.

There were two.
They killed the second one and put both snakes on display.

Mrs. Mead's husband came by, and the women took him out to view their snakes.

There were three.
They killed the third snake.

But this time, "we got rid of them," Mrs. Phillips said. "I didn't want to take a chance that there'd be another one by the time my husband got home."

Kroger talks set Thursday

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Representatives for Krogers and striking Teamsters Local 100 will meet Thursday to attempt to settle a contract dispute which today closed 35 of Krogers' 67 area stores.

The Kroger-Teamster dispute is over wages. The union is asking for raises totaling 85 cents an hour the next two years with the option to renegotiate the third year.

Krogers is offering a 94 cents an hour increase covering all three years.

A Kroger spokesman said the store closings are necessary because picket lines were being honored by many of the 2,300 local retail clerks.

Dr. Frank Todd drove winners in all four heats of the 3-year-old Ohio Colt Racing Association trotting stakes Monday night at the Fayette County Fair, turning in the outstanding driving performance of the evening. The veteran driver piloted Right Turn to wins in 2:08.1 and 2:11.2 and May to victories in 2:09.4 and 2:10.1.

Fayette County's only winning representatives were Darby L., a brown 4-year-old, and driver Bill Stevens. Darby L. won both heats of a pace, the second by a nose. The times for the Stevens and Jerry Warner-owned pacer were 2:12.2 and 2:10.1.

The first of Todd's victories (his son, Bob, also drove a winner) came in the very first dash. Right Turn moved away from Paul Elrod's Shammy Tara on the final turn to win by a neck.

Right Turn came back to win the sixth race in a tight race with Dudley Moon's Mindy Honor. The bay, owned by E. DeWine, Jr., Jamestown, won the stakes trophy for the fastest heat.

MAY, a mare owned by Hawley Todd, Miami, won for the fourth and fifth times in 11 starts in the second and sixth races for Todd's other wins. Both wins were by comfortable margins.

Darby L. picked up his first two wins in six starts this year, taking both ends of a pace for non-winners of $2,000 this year. The 4-year-old was guided to the lead by Stevens on the backstretch in the third, winning in good shape over Rhythm Pride.

In the eighth race, Darby L. again made his move on the backstretch, then dueling with Atom Cloud the last eighth of a mile. In a photo finish, it was Darby L. by just a nose.

Bob Todd, the doctor's son, drove Carib, a 5-year-old bay mare, owned by Wilmington's Darbyshire Farms, to an easy victory in 2:12 in the fifth race. Carib provided the night's biggest win payoff, $8.60. It was a slim night for longshots.

In the fifth race, the Tri-County

Pace, a former Washington C.H. resident's 3-year-old won the first time it ever went behind a starting gate. Winning Cross, owned by Robert Carpenter, now of Lebanon, was driven to the win by Alvin Long in 2:11.

Some of the area's top 2-year-olds, both trotters and pacers, will take the track Tuesday night as the OCRA stakes for the youngsters are held.

Also on tap Tuesday is a $1,500 claiming race. Post time is 7:30 p.m.

team to its second consecutive victory of the District 8 tournament at Wilson Field Monday night.

Cobb's masterpiece on the mound, coupled with a heavy-hitting offensive show and a solid defensive effort, blanked Fairborn American by a 5-0 score.

The Fairborn American team filed a protest in Monday night's game, complaining of an ineligible Washington C.H. player, but the protest was rejected by Al Bisqueley, District 8 Little League administrator.

Cobb fanned a total of five Fairborn American batters in picking up the pitching win while he received plenty of offensive support from Joe Smith and Larry Brickles who pounded first inning home runs.

ACTUALLY, the contest was decided in the first inning when the Washington C.H. stars scored all five of their runs. Washington C.H. mounted scoring threats in the fourth inning when two runners reached the basepaths.

Smith clouted a three-run homer in the opening inning after Fred Jones had reached first on a fielding error and Marty Huffman doubled.

Following Smith's three-run blow, Tom Bath singled and scored on a two-run circuit shot by Brickles.

Washington C.H. was held hitless in the second and third innings, but shortstop Todd Terrell and Ronnie West both singled in the fourth inning before the threat was quelled.

Washington C.H.'s seventh hit of the game came in the fifth frame when Huffman singled.

Ramsey was tagged with the pitching setback for Fairborn American. Washington C.H. is scheduled to entertain Dayton Hard Scrabble at Wilson Field at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The survivor of the Washington C.H.-Dayton Hard Scrabble game will play on Friday.

Anderson seeks victory tonight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An undaunted Dick Williams and a determined Sparky Anderson reflect the intense mood of tonight's 44th All-Star baseball game at plush Royals Stadium.

Williams left a hospital bed after a recent appendectomy to lead the American League team while National League Manager Anderson vows: "I'm here for just one thing—to win."

The setting is particularly dramatic, considering that All-Star games in the past have been brushed off by some players as insignificant exhibitions.

But Anderson has expressed a fierce desire to beat the American League in the midsummer classic.

"I'll try to figure out what moves Williams will be making, and everybody on my staff will be ready to help out," says the Cincinnati Reds' manager.

A sellout crowd of more than 40,000 will be on hand at baseball's newest park while millions more watch the starstudded affair on national television (NBC). Game time is 8:30 p.m., EDT.

Anderson isn't taking this game lightly for a reason. He feels he has something to prove.

"I'd like to be on the winning side for a change," says Anderson, who has lost two World Series and was the losing manager in the 1971 All-Star Game at Detroit. "That's why I picked some of the ballplayers I picked. I wanted guys who could come off the bench and help me win."

Along with the managers, the players by have shown an uncommon competitive desire. Both third baseman Ron Santo and shortstop Chris Speier were injured last week, but will be in the National League's starting lineup.

The American League's starting pitcher, Catfish Hunter of the Oakland A's, a 15-game winner, will face Rick Wise of the St. Louis Cardinals in an attempt to cut into the National League's 24-18 lead in the series which started back in 1933. There has been one tie in All-Star competition.

"It's a great honor for me," said Wise, an 11-game winner who was chosen over more illustrious names because he had the most rest.

Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris will lead off for the American League, followed by left-handed hitter Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins, the team's second baseman. First baseman John Mayberry of the Kansas City Royals and rightfielder Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's, the 3-4 hitters, are both left-handed.

After centerfielder Amos Otis of the Royals, the AL's No.5 hitter, comes lefty Bobby Murcer of the New York Yankees. He'll play left field.

Catcher Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox will be No.7 in the batting order, followed by third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore

Orioles and Hunter.

Left fielder Pete Rose and second baseman Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds will bat 1-2 in the National League order. Centerfielder Cesar Cedeño of the Houston Astros, first baseman Henry Aaron and right fielder Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs will hit 3-4 for the Nationals.

The rest of the order includes Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, Santo, Speier and Wise.

Injured Concepcion now afraid to steal

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati shortstop Dave Concepcion blames the injury which forced him to miss his first All-Star game on aggressive base running. Now he is having second thoughts about hustling on the base paths.

Tuesday, July 24, 1973
Record-Herald - Page 8
Washington C. H. (O.)

"I'm not going to steal bases any more," Concepcion said. "I will be a little afraid."

"I just think all I'm going to do is be a .300 hitter but not run," he said.

Concepcion, Manager Sparky Anderson's choice to back up San Francisco's Chris Speier as the National League's All-Star shortstop, was injured in the Reds win Sunday over the Montreal Expos. Although the Reds were already leading 6-0, he tried to go from first to third on an infield out.

He made it easily, but in his slide he caught his spikes in the dirt and crashed into the base, dislocating his ankle and breaking his leg.

Concepcion was hitting .287 with 46 runs batted in before Sunday's injury. He also had nine game-winning hits and 22 stolen bases in 26 tries.

Why did he try to take the extra base with the Reds ahead by six runs?

"I just tried to win the game," Concepcion said. "I knew I had a chance and made it, yes."

Concepcion also admitted he wanted to show up Montreal's rookie shortstop Larry Lintz, known for his speed.

"I can run better than anybody in the league from first to third and from second to home," Concepcion said. "Yes, I am convinced of this."

The injury robs Concepcion of the chance to play in tonight's All-Star Game in Kansas City. Instead, he will view the game from his Cincinnati hospital bed.

"The All-Star Game was very important to me because it was my first one, and all the people from my country would be able to see me on television," Concepcion said.

Legion team meets Ironton in tourney

The Washington C.H. Post 25 American Legion baseball team will collide with Ironton at 8 p.m. tonight in the District 7 American Legion baseball tournament at Hillsboro's city park.

Kip Young, who turned in a sensational freshman season at Bowling Green State University this season, stymied Ironton with a fifty four-hitter Monday night as Hillsboro nudged the Lawrence Countians by a 1-0 score.

Washington C.H. and Ironton will be matching identical 1-1 tourney records in tonight's 8 p.m. contest. Manager Dennis Morris' Post 25 team was clouted 13-2 by always-tough Portsmouth Sunday night and picked up a forfeit win over Waverly. Ironton, on the other hand, topped Chillicothe Post 757 by a 6-2 count in the tournament's opening round.

In other action at Hillsboro Monday night, Portsmouth posted its second straight win by downing Chillicothe Post 62 by a 6-3 score in the tourney's nightcap.

Greenfield, which lost its opening round game with Highland County rival Hillsboro, and Chillicothe Post 757, an opening round victim of Ironton, will clash in tonight's 6 p.m. game.

Sabina's Boggs tops Babe Ruth all-stars

Howard Boggs, of Sabina, was named the most valuable player in the Fayette County Babe Ruth League as the league announced its 1973 all-star team today.

Commissioner John Skinner said Boggs was the top choice of the eight Babe Ruth League managers on the 15-player team on the basis of a .530 batting average with four home runs and 18 runs-batted in.

Boggs, a versatile player, has compiled a fine 4-2 pitching record for Sabina with 55 strikeouts in 32 innings.

State election reform hopes dim

By KEN DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Major reform of Ohio's political campaign financing laws teeters these days on the edge of limbo for this session of the 110th General Assembly.

A last-minute nudge by Gov. John J. Gilligan in a letter to the legislature may rescue reform from the present session's waste basket, but Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, doubts it.

Matia is author of Senate Bill 46, a reform bill stalled in committee since last February.

In a letter to Gilligan, the Westlake legislator wrote, "Although S. B. 46 is a step in the right direction, I now believe that we should seek even greater reforms. Accordingly, I am having the Legislative Service Commission draft a substitute bill which will be far more comprehensive than the original S.B. 46."

Matia said, "At this stage of the current session it would seem to me most unwise to rush through a major campaign financing reform bill without adequate consideration."

But, Gilligan argued "There is still ample time to give these bills adequate hearings, to debate their merits, to amend them as you see fit, and to adopt them before you adjourn."

The governor referred to Matia's Senate bill and to House Bill 705, both of which stiffen present laws.

Matia informed Gilligan that he would head a subcommittee to consider campaign financing reform bills after the summer recess of the legislature.

But, neither Matia nor Gilligan appeared at odds over the need for reform. "The cost of running for office is getting out of hand, and unless we put on some controls only the very wealthy will be able to be candidates," said Matia.

In his letter to the legislature, Gilligan called reform imperative for the survival of our free election process and the restoration of public confidence in our system of self-government.

Under Matia's proposed substitute bill, no individual except a candidate, his family or his party could contribute more than $10,000 or one penny times the total population of the district, whichever is less.

Candidates, their families and their parties could not contribute more than five times that limit.

Corporations, labor unions, partnerships or other business and labor groups could contribute to any party, candidate or committee.

A candidate could have only one committee for receiving contributions and no campaign expenses could be paid by any person other than the certified treasurer of that committee.

3 equipment ordinances on Council slate

Three ordinances to purchase equipment and a fourth to pay an engineering firm for professional services are on the agenda for the Wednesday night meeting of Washington City Council.

The legislators will meet in the city offices at 7 o'clock. Council has also scheduled a session with Union Township trustees for the same time.

A six-part city manager's report including plans for the 1973 street resurfacing program and allocation and use of County Permissive License Tax funds are on the agenda. City Manager Dan Wolford also expects to discuss a request from South Side Church of Christ for a curb cut for a parking lot development, and will present a request to reject bids received for radio communications equipment.

Wolford is also to report on U.S. 35 improvements, and will seek approval to pay three bills: Calvert Chemical Co., $833.49; Mai Kai Hot Mix, Inc., $1,023, and Colonial Paint Co., $693.75.

The ordinance authorizing payment to C.F. Bird & R.J. Bull, Ltd., for professional services, was tabled at the last Council session when Councilman Joseph O'Brien said he thought the bill had already been paid.

The other ordinances are to authorize Wolford to purchase four typewriters, recording and transcribing equipment from IBM Corp.

Rolling laboratory checks environment

VIENNA (AP) — A rolling laboratory equipped with the most modern technical devices is now cruising through the Austrian capital to speed up and facilitate the enforcement of the new environmental laws.

The laboratory examines samples of Vienna's air and water, and monitors the regulated noise level of construction machinery. It also checks on the emissions of Vienna's municipal buses, which run on a nonpolluting fuel mixture, and on the noise made by the city's garbage trucks.

TV Viewing

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Bruce Paltrow got the idea while playing touch football in the Bahamas.

His wife, Blythe Danner, was making a movie, "Chokeberry Bay," and with time on his hands he started tossing the ball around on the beach. His wife is now co-starring in the new series "Adam's Rib" at MGM, the same studio where he's working.

"Guys are strange," he said. "They have virility hangups. If a guy's not making out he's joining the skydiving club. If a guy's not making out he's throwing body blocks in touch football. It's instant machismo."

The idea was for "ShirtsSkins," one of the wildest, funniest, most outrageous Movies of the Week ABC has ever scheduled. ABC expects to show the film in September. But beneath all that razzledazzle it's really a very pointed character study. ABC is thinking about turning it into a series.

It's about six professional men—doctors, dentists, stockbrokers, the like—who meet once a week for a game of basketball. It stars Rene Auberjonois, Bill Bixby, Leonard Frey, Doug McClure, McLean Stevenson and Robert Walden.

They choose up sides—shirts and skins—and every week the rough and tumble game ends up with bruised knees and elbows and a fight.

To settle an argument a simple idea is suggested: Each side will hide a basketball in plain view somewhere in the city and the other side has to find it. It sounds like innocent fun, but it turns into warfare.

"It's like limited war—then it escalates," said the 29-year-old Paltrow, who produced two plays on Off Broadway before writing the screenplay and serving as co-producer. A native New Yorker, he went south to

New Orleans to attend Tulane University. He also worked three years at a movie studio—carrying film.

"For instance, how did the war in the Congo start? No one knows. The start was insignificant. Then it escalated. It starts with some silliness—then somebody starts throwing punches."

He said, "The guys in the movie are similar to generals. Generals are a very lucky breed of people. They're guys with the best toys to play with. They get to wear fancy uniforms with medals. They're like children. I guess the more technical our society becomes the more silly people become trying to control what they've created."

Paltrow conceived the story as a theatrical movie, as a parallel to war, but he had to scale it down for television.

"It's lighter now," he said. "More delicious for TV. Before it had more bite. It didn't come out conceptually as I intended. I wanted a black, black comedy. I had to alter it for television."

Paltrow said he is not unhappy with the results.

They'll tell automatically

BOSTON (AP) — Automated teller devices, standing alone or embedded in building walls, are gaining rapid favor among U.S. bankers, Arthur D. Little Inc. reports.

First introduced in Europe and Japan several years ago, the card-activated devices for 24-hour banking service first appeared in this country in 1968. Today there are more than 1,000 automated tellers in U.S. banks, and probably twice that many more are on order.

Blind men and women learn fencing by hearing, touch

ALBANY, Calif. (AP) — Twenty blind men and women are learning fencing here by honing their senses of hearing and touch.

"It is tremendous the way a human body can refine other senses to compensate for the loss of one," said Julius Palfy-Alpar, instructor at the California State Orientation Center for the Blind.

Every fencer uses hearing and touch, he said. "Foil is antennae. The sound, the movement the fencer feels tell him something. There is a communication between two blades."

Zarna Allen — a Fontana, Calif., housewife who lost her sight in a car accident last year — said fencing requires the same sensitive touch as the walking cane.

"It's very good practice. The walking cane is a kind of foil," she said.

Palfy-Alpar agreed, saying the students use the cane to project their touch, to see through their fingertips.

"They can learn to use the foil to find their way in space, to use it as a long pencil, drawing circles and lines, projecting it to a point in space."

He tells the blind students: "When you feel that the pressure of the other blade is released, you bring your blade to the other side, and if you do not engage the other blade there, you bring it back."

The opponent must strike from one side or the other, he added. If the blind fencer's timing is right, his reflexes quick and the opponent doesn't win the guessing contest, he'll catch the blade again.

As in other fencing classes, the foils have buttons on the tips, and the participants wear protective clothing, including helmets with a screen to protect the face.

Costly contact

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Moslem religious courts have convicted 250 couples in Selangor State on charges of close proximity.

Malaysian law forbids unmarried Moslem couples to embrace, hold each other, kiss or engage in more intimate contact. Fines usually run about $25.

Ask The Lindsay Man

Q. What do I do? My husband doesn't like my coffee.

A. For review, the coffee maker's pledge: "A clean pot, fresh cold tap water, accurate measurements." If that doesn't work, think about soft water. With the minerals removed, it can enhance the taste of coffee. Likewise many other water-based beverages. Small price to pay to keep a husband happy.

Q. Does it matter how often I shampoo my hair each week?

A. Not if conditions are right. Wash and rinse your hair in soft water and you can shampoo daily—and safely. We also recommend a mild non-alcoholic soap which won't dry out your hair and scalp.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1	Pass	3♦	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5♦	Pass

Opening lead - nine of clubs.

It would seem that declarer requires a successful spade finesse to make the slam, but actually South has a much better chance than that.

A good rule for declarer to follow - when the outcome of a hand seemingly rests on where a particular card (here, the king of spades) is located - is to start looking for ways and means of making the slam even if the king is wrongly placed.

In line with this, after assessing his prospects, South should realize that he can make the contract regardless of which defender holds the king of spades, if West has the ace of hearts.

So, after taking the ace of clubs, drawing two rounds of trumps and winding up in his hand, South plays a low heart to the king at trick four. If West goes up with the ace, South's worries are over, so let's assume he permits dummy to win with the king.

This does not get West off the hook, because declarer pursues his plan by cashing his remaining clubs, discarding the nine of hearts from his hand on dummy's last club.

Declarer then plays a heart to his unattended queen. West takes the ace but must give up the ghost, whatever he returns. If he plays a spade, declarer's spade loser disappears, and if he plays a heart, South discards a spade from dummy as he ruffs the return in his hand, in that way eliminating dummy's spade loser.

So - oddly enough - when dummy comes down, South prays first that West was dealt the ace of hearts, and it is only when and if East shows up with that card that South prays next that East was also dealt the king of spades.

Gamma Globulin as Protection

One of my close friends came down with hepatitis. Although we were not in immediate contact, with her, we went to see our doctors about a protective shot. Some of us got the shot of gamma globulin, others did not. None of us came down with hepatitis. I am curious about the difference of opinion.

Miss E.B., N.J.

Dear Miss B.:

Gamma globulin is a protective fluid that can modify or prevent disease in some people who have been exposed to some kinds of infectious illnesses. G.G. is a very complex substance and exists in a number of forms. Much confusion is still present about the ideal time for its use and the special diseases that it modified.

In some instances, people are born with diminished or absent gamma globulin. Children with this deficiency are highly susceptible to all kinds of infections. They are given booster shots of G.G. at regular intervals in order to bolster their defense against disease. Here it is very effective.

G.G. is considered in each individual case as a preventive injection, depending on the exact nature and degree of the exposure to the person with infectious hepatitis.

For this reason there may seem to be confusion about your friends who were, and who were not, given injections.

That the judgment of the doctors was correct is the fact that none of you became ill.

I am very susceptible to poison ivy. No one else in my family is burdened by this yearly summer hazard. It seems that I can be a mile away from poison ivy and somehow it gets to me.

Mrs. B.L.J., Ga.

Dear Mrs. J.:

Severe reactions to poison ivy, poison oak, and poison sumac can actually be considered an allergic reaction. Some people are more sensitive to them than others.

It is well recognized that a certain immunity to these substances exists. Similarly, not all people exposed to golden rod sneeze or have hat fever. Dermatitis, an inflammation of the skin, results in most people when they are in direct contact with the poison ivy plant known as Rhus. However, direct contact with the plant is not always necessary. Exposure to the smoke of burning poison ivy plants can cause this skin eruption.

Animals that run about outdoors can bring their contaminated coats to people.

Those who know they are highly sensitive should study and learn unmistakably the leaves of poison ivy, oak and sumac and then stay away from areas where they grow. Some specialists in allergy have, with some success, desensitized people who are extraordinarily troubled.

You'll want to see the Photography exhibit at the Fayette County Fair this week. The color photography exhibit is the biggest we've ever had. New names appear. Like, for example, Philip Warner. I'd never seen any of Warner's work before, but you should see his blue ribbon slide in the Pictorial Portrait class. That one could easily have taken sweeps.

And Ruthann LaFollette. Some beautiful color slides by Miss LaFollette, including a first in the Abstract and Experimental class. And Susan Rockhold is another young lady who knows how to handle a camera. Believe me, there is much more to using a camera than pointing it in the right direction. Photography is an art; and these two young ladies are mastering that art in a way that will make them both tough contenders in the future.

Sweepstakes awards went to two photographers. These men know photography, the science of the camera and the art of picture making. This is not the first sweeps Stu Gossard has taken. It won't be the last; this boy knows what he is about. This is the first sweepstakes award for Ed Summers. Ed's young. The future holds much for a man with Ed's savvy.

But matching the pleasure of seeing the new ideas presented in the exhibit is the satisfaction of seeing the consistent quality and good taste in the work of Howard Miller, John Halliday and, of course, Stu Gossard. Come to the Fair and see the Photo Exhibit.

U.S. planes hit Cambodian Reds

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian military command said today there was little enemy activity during the night on all fronts.

The command said this resulted from the operations of its ground troops and the bombing by U.S. and Cambodian air forces.

U.S. B52 heavy bombers and F111s from Thailand continued around-the-clock strikes against known and suspected enemy bunkers within a 10-mile radius of Phnom Penh and around outlying provincial capitals isolated by the insurgents. The newest target area is the region of Prek Ho Village, five miles south of here, where the insurgents moved in over the weekend.

During the day Monday, the government used air and ground forces eight miles northwest of Phnom Penh, the command said. It claimed the capture of numerous enemy weapons, including armorpiercing rockets, submachine guns, and 85 rounds of 82mm mortar ammunition.

Three government troops were killed, the command said.

In a delayed report, the command said government soldiers at Battambang, near the Thai border, killed 56 enemy and seized many weapons. Government losses were not reported.

Meanwhile, Premier In Tam said the military situation in Cambodia was going "from bad to worse" every day. But he said that, with about 20,000 additional troops, his government would be able to defend itself after the U. S. bombing stops Aug. 15.

The premier appealed to his countrymen not to avoid the draft, which was launched this month. He said volunteers will have to serve only 15 months, while draftees will serve 18.

In South Vietnam, a government communique said 21 Communist troops were killed in clash near the LaiKhe military base about 25 miles north of Saigon with two government infantrymen killed and three wounded.

The South Vietnamese government today released several hundred more civilian prisoners to the Viet Cong at Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon. More than 800 civilians have been turned over to the Communists since the exchange program was resumed Monday. Nearly 50 have asked to return to Saigon.

A group of 27 prisoners opposed to President Nguyen Van Thieu's government announced that they were asking the International Commission of Control and Supervision to arrange for them to be released in Saigon instead of being railroaded to the Viet Cong.

Seek missing in Pan Am plane crash

PAPEETE, Tahiti (AP) — Officials of Pan American World Airways said today the search would go on for those missing after one of its jetliners crashed in the Pacific but all but one of the 79 persons on board were presumed dead.

The airline said the dead included 36 Americans. Twelve bodies have been recovered.

The lone survivor was James Campbell of Madawaska, Ont. The Papeete hospital said he was in satisfactory condition with contusions.

The airline said that, among the 69 passengers, were 28 Americans who boarded the flight in Tahiti and four who boarded in New Zealand. Four of the 10 crew members also were Americans.

One witness to Sunday night's crash said the plane turned to the left as soon as it took off and then started going down.

Pan Am denied suggestions that a defective windshield in the cockpit might have contributed to the crash.

U.S. won't join atom test protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States will not join some key allies in protesting the current series of nuclear tests France is conducting in the atmosphere over the South Pacific.

Unlike the positions taken by Japan, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, Nixon administration officials say there is no danger from the blasts.

Besides, they say, an American protest would have no effect and there are diplomatic considerations that weigh against any outspoken U.S. opposition to the tests that began Saturday.

For the record, State Department spokesman Paul Hare said Monday the official U.S. position is to hope for adherence to the 1963 treaty banning atomic testing above ground.

He pointed to past statements to this effect as well as previous expressions of general concern over atmospheric testing as the basis for U.S. policy.

The U.S. attitude contrasted with that of other countries. Peru broke diplomatic relations with France Monday and the Canadian House of Commons unanimously approved a resolution deploring the tests.

Hare, however, declined to characterize the official U.S. attitude toward the actual tests when asked if the administration was troubled by the blast.

When it was pointed out that in the past the United States had stated its "regrets" over French atmospheric testing, administration officials said such statements no longer apply.

Officials privately set forth several reasons for the U.S. reluctance to make any statements on the French tests.

They said that to be more direct, even to the point of repeating past statements of regret, could be construed by France as American interference in its internal affairs, upsetting delicate relations with Paris in other diplomatic areas.

Added to this, the officials said, is the Nixon Doctrine of not attempting to impose an essentially moral position on another nation, particularly when the French attitude has clearly shown it would do no good.

On a more cautious note, some officials indicate the growing but still fragile improvement of U.S. relations with the Peoples Republic of China also is involved.

Nixon is anxious to avoid any action that could hurt U.S.-Peking relations and this involves any criticism of China's nuclear program.

Wheat sale probe enters 3rd day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four months of investigations and two days of public hearings have failed to settle whether the Agriculture Department knew of the extent of the big Soviet wheat purchase before the deal was made.

The issue is the central one in the probe by the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee, which planned a third day of hearings today.

The General Accounting Office, which conducted its own probe of the 1972 sale, concluded that the Agriculture Department had information that would have led the government to believe the Soviets would need large amounts of wheat.

Joseph R. Ferri, assistant GAO director, testified Monday that U.S. attaches in Moscow, Canada and Australia had made clear that in early 1972 the United States had emerged as a dominant supplier of wheat to the world.

"The information, however, was not effectively used or disseminated," Ferri said.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and Carroll Brunthaver, assistant secretary, said the department had no solid information that the Soviet Union would need large amounts of wheat.

Economic crimes become target of Columbus panel

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus is one of 15 cities participating in a national program to expand the investigation and prosecution of so-called economic crimes, Prosecuting Atty. George Smith said today.

Smith said the Committee on Economic Crime, set up last May by the National District Attorneys Association, will operate with a $532,175 grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

He said Columbus will be one of nine participating cities which will hire a full-time special assistant to handle cases of consumer fraud, embezzlement, organized crime, political crimes and crimes involving computers.

Research and technical information will be provided by The Academy for Contemporary Problems and Battelle Memorial Institute. Both have offices here.

School president hits teacher plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The president of the Ohio Board of Education told Ohio House members Monday that a bill to create a Teacher Education Planning Commission would simply duplicate work already done.

In a letter to the legislature, John R. Meckstroth said plans for major changes in teacher education have already been made and are ready for implementation.

"This proposed bill would create an unnecessary fifth wheel of bureaucracy generating unwarranted delay in the vital responsibility to redesign the preparation of teachers for Ohio's 2.7 million youngsters," Meckstroth wrote.
